Privacy notice – Deductible gift recipient endorsement application form and instructions

Deductible Gift Recipient (DGR) endorsement application form and instructions privacy notice.

Last updated 11 February 2019

We are authorised by the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997, the Tax Administration Act 1953 and the A New Tax System (Australian Business Number) Act 1999 to ask for information in the Deductible gift recipient endorsement application form. We need this information to help us endorse your organisation as a deductible gift recipient and to help us maintain the details relating to your organisation that are recorded on our systems. If the information is not collected, there could be a delay processing your application or an error in your organisation's record.

We also provide taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements.

If you have an Australian Business Number, some the information collected on this application will also be used to update the Australian Business Register (ABR). Where authorised by law, selected information on the ABR may be made publicly available and some may be passed to a wide range of other government agencies, including Commonwealth, State, Territory and local government agencies.

The following information will be publicly available through the register:

- Your organisations entity type - charity, public benevolent institution, health promotion charity or income tax exempt fund
- the tax concessions it has been endorsed to access
- the date of effect for each endorsement.
- Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information how you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you, how to make a complaint if you think we have breached the Australian Privacy Principles and how we deal with any privacy complaints.

For more information about privacy or if you believe your privacy has been compromised:

Employers and other withholding payers

This page provides an overview of the types of information we may receive from employers and other withholding payers.

Last updated 11 February 2019

Privacy notice

Subdivision 16C of Schedule 1 to the Taxation Administration Act, 1953 requires every employer and withholding payer to provide the Commissioner of Taxation with an annual report relating to all payments made that were subject to the withholding system. The law specifies the items of information the withholding payer's report must contain, including each payee's name, address, tax file number and amount of income paid to them.

Taxation law authorises us to give this information to other government departments and agencies, such as:

- benefit payment agencies like Services Australia

- state and federal police and other agencies like the Australian Bureau of Statistics
- Reserve Bank of Australia

The ATO also provides taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements with many other countries.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you, how to make a complaint if you think we have breached the Australian Privacy Principles and how we will deal with any privacy complaints.

Privacy notice – Family trust election, revocation or variation

Family trust election, revocation or variation privacy notice.

Last updated 25 June 2024

We are authorised by the Taxation Administration Act 1953 to ask for a tax file number (TFN), including the TFN of a trust beneficiary (or beneficiaries). We will use the TFN to identify taxpayers in our records. It is not an offence not to provide a TFN but if you don't your return may take longer to process.

We are also authorised by the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936 and the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997 (among others) to ask for other information on the Family trust election, revocation or variation form. We need this information to help us administer tax law. If the information is not collected, there could be a delay in processing your return.

Where authorised by law, we may give this information to other government departments and agencies, including:

- Department of Education
- Department of Employment
- Department of Social Services
- Services Australia
- State and Federal Police

- Australian Bureau of Statistics
- Reserve Bank of Australia.

We also provide taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements.

If you have an Australian business number, some information on this form may be collected under the A New Tax System (Australian Business Number Act) 1999 and will be used to update your details on the Australian Business Register \(ABR\) . Where authorised by law, selected information may be made publicly available and some may be passed to a wide range of government agencies, including Commonwealth, state and local government agencies.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you, how to make a complaint if you think we have breached the Australian Privacy Principles and how we will deal with any privacy complaints.

If you have a privacy concern or need more information, phone or write to our privacy hotline.

To report an instance where you suspect your privacy has been compromised, see Data breach guidance for individuals.

Privacy notice

Regulation 56 in the Income Tax Regulations 1936 requires every investment body (including banks and other financial institutions, public companies with shareholders, and managers of unit trusts) to provide to the Commissioner of Taxation a report relating to all investments the investment body has accepted. Regulation 56 specifies the items of information the investment body's report must contain, including each investor's name, address, tax file number and amount of income paid to them by the investment body.

Taxation law authorises us to give this information to other government departments and agencies, such as:

- benefit payment agencies like Services Australia
- state and federal police and other agencies like the Australian Bureau of Statistics
- Reserve Bank of Australia

The ATO also provides taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements with many other countries.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you, how to make a complaint if you think we have breached the Australian Privacy Principles and how we will deal with any privacy complaints.

Privacy notice – JobKeeper

This JobKeeper privacy notice relates to both employers and employees.

Last updated 12 May 2020

We are authorised by the Taxation Administration Act 1953 to request tax file numbers (TFNs). We will use these TFNs to identify the relevant taxpayer in our records. It is not an offence not to provide any TFNs. However, if you do not provide TFNs, this may delay the assessment of your JobKeeper eligibility or the processing of your JobKeeper payment.

This privacy notice relates to these JobKeeper forms:

- JobKeeper notices for eligible business participants – excluding sole traders
- JobKeeper payment – employee notices
- JobKeeper payment – religious practitioner notices
- Election to exclude government grants from turnover for charities

We are authorised to ask for the information on your JobKeeper form by the:

- Coronavirus Economic Response Package (Payments and Benefits) Act 2020
- Coronavirus Economic Response Package (Payments and Benefits) Rules 2020
- Coronavirus Economic Response Package Amendment (Payments and Benefits) Amendment Rules (No. 1) 2020
- Income Tax Assessment Act 1936
- Income Tax Assessment Act 1997
- Taxation Administration Act 1953

We need this information to help us administer taxation laws. If the information is not collected, it could delay or there could be an error in the assessment of your JobKeeper eligibility or the processing of your JobKeeper payment.

Certain information about your computer, your browser and the authentication process will also be logged when you interact online for JobKeeper.

Where authorised by law, we may collect certain information about your JobKeeper eligibility or payment from third parties, such as employees, employers or customers. We will use this information, and other information already held by us, to ascertain your eligibility to any JobKeeper payment.

Where authorised by law, we may give information collected in relation to your JobKeeper eligibility or payment to other government departments and agencies, including:

- Department of Education, Skills and Employment
- Fair Work Australia
- Services Australia
- Department of Social Services
- Department of Veterans' Affairs
- Australian Bureau of Statistics
- Reserve Bank of Australia

An authorised deposit-taking institution (ADI) that has been approached by an entity for finance to enable them to effectively participate in the JobKeeper payment program, may request confirmation from the ATO of information provided by the entity to the ADI, about information exchanged between the entity and the Commissioner, when the entity elected to participate in the JobKeeper payment program. Where authorised by law, we may confirm that information with the ADI.

We provide some taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements.

If you are the holder of an Australian Business Number, some information on this form may be collected under the A New Tax System (Australian Business Number Act) 1999 and will be used to update your details on the Australian Business Register (ABR). Where authorised by law, selected information may be made publicly available and some may be passed to a wide range of government agencies, which include Commonwealth, state and local government agencies.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how you can access and seek correction to information we hold about you, how to make a complaint if you think we have breached the Australian Privacy Principles, and how we will deal with any privacy complaints.

Privacy notice – Maintain credit and debit cards

Privacy notice for how we maintain credit and debit card information.

Last updated 1 December 2025

When you enter and save your credit or debit card information, your information is being stored, used and shared with your consent for the purposes of facilitating recurring payments to us.

Your credit and debit card information is 'personal information' within the meaning of section 6 of the Privacy Act 1988.

If you choose to store your personal information, it is collected, stored and received by our dedicated banking provider, the Reserve Bank of Australia through its secure payment gateway service and storage provider, Worldline Australia Pty Ltd (ABN 50 645 073 034), in compliance with strict data security and privacy requirements.

The Reserve Bank of Australia and Worldline Australia Pty Ltd, are collectively known as the 'secure payment facilitators'.

If you choose not to provide or share your personal information, we and the secure payment facilitators won't be able to maintain or recall your credit or debit card information to facilitate recurring payments.

We and the secure payment facilitators don't usually disclose your personal information to other persons or organisations, unless required or authorised by Australian law.

The secure payment facilitators will store your personal information in Australia and are unlikely to disclose the information to overseas recipients.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how:

- you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you
- how to make a complaint if you think we have breached the Australian Privacy Principles
- how we will deal with any privacy complaints.

To contact us, you can:

Privacy notice – Members joining or leaving an income tax consolidated group

Read about our privacy notice for members joining or leaving an income tax consolidated group.

Last updated 21 May 2019

We are authorised by the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997 to collect the information requested on the Notification of members joining and/or leaving an income tax consolidated group form. We need it to update the details of an income tax consolidated group. If your form is incomplete, incorrect or needs checking, it may delay processing, or we may ask you to complete a new form.

We are authorised by the Taxation Administration Act 1953 to ask for tax file numbers (TFNs). You are not required by law to provide us with a TFN, however, failure to provide a TFN may result in a delay in processing this notification.

We collect some personal information about you because you signed the form. That information will enable us to ensure that you are the person with the authority within the company to complete the form. It will also allow us to contact you if we need further information.

Where authorised by law, we may give this information to other government departments and agencies, including:

- Australian Bureau of Statistics
- Law Enforcement Agencies
- Centrelink

We also provide taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you, how to make a complaint if you think we have breached the Australian Privacy Principles and how we will deal with any privacy complaints.

Privacy notice – Objection form (non-tax professionals)

Objection form (non-tax professionals) privacy notice.

Last updated 11 February 2019

We are authorised by the Taxation Administration Act 1953 to ask for a tax file number (TFN). We will use the TFN to identify taxpayers in our records. It is not an offence not to provide a TFN. You can choose to provide an Australian business number (ABN) instead. However, if you do not provide either your TFN or an ABN a response to your request may be delayed.

We are also authorised by the Taxation Administration Act 1953 to ask for information on the Objection form – for taxpayers. We need this information to help us to administer the taxation and superannuation law. If the information is not provided a response to your request may be delayed.

Where authorised by law, we may give this information to other government departments and agencies, including:

- Australian Bureau of Statistics
- Department of Education
- Department of Employment
- Services Australia
- Department of Social Services
- state and federal police
- the Reserve Bank of Australia.

We also provide taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements.

If you have an Australian Business Number, some information on this form may be collected under the A New Tax System (Australian Business Number Act) 1999 and will be used to update your details on the Australian Business Register (ABR). Where authorised by law, selected information may be made publicly available and some may be passed to a wide range of government agencies, including Commonwealth, state and local government agencies.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you, how you may complain about a breach of the Australian Privacy Principles and how we will deal with any privacy complaint.

Privacy notice for online services for non-residents

Privacy notice for ATO online services for non-residents.

Last updated 5 June 2017

We collect personal information about your authorised contact/s when you use this online service. This personal information may include details that identify an individual. These types of collections include (but are not limited to) information from the individual in their capacity as:

- an authorised person such as a director
- a partner in a partnership structure
- a sole trader.

This notice explains how we manage the personal information we collect.

We are authorised by the Taxation Administration Act 1953 to collect personal information.

We will collect the authorised contact's [name, business/legal name, role, email address, business and mobile phone numbers] for the purposes of [contacting them to discuss your Australian taxation accounts and to provide information about these taxation accounts to the authorised contact if they contact us].

If you have provided any Australian tax file number (TFN) relating to you as an individual, we may use it so we can identify you. The Taxation Administration Act 1953 authorises us to ask for your TFN. It is not an offence not to quote an Australian TFN relating to an individual.

Where authorised by law, we may give this information to other government departments and agencies. The ATO also provides taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements with many other countries. More information about these treaties is on the ATO website (ato.gov.au). The ATO's privacy policy is also on our website. The policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you, how to make a complaint if you think we have breached the Australian Privacy Principles and how we will deal with any privacy complaints.

When you use our online systems, we collect certain information from your computer and browser.

Our online services automatically send us usage data using analytics tools including Google Analytics to help improve our services. They do not collect or send your identity. For more information about Google Analytics, go to Google privacy policy .

The information you provide on the registration form is secure. If you/we provide information by email please be aware that this may not be secure.

Privacy notice

We are authorised by the Taxation Administration Act 1953 to request tax file numbers (TFNs). We will use the TFNs to correctly identify each partner in our records. It is not an offence not to provide the TFNs but if you don't it could increase the chance of delay or error in each partner's assessment.

We are also authorised by the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936 and the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997 to ask for the other information on this tax return. We need this information to help us to administer taxation law. If the information is not collected it could increase the chance of a delay or error in each partner's assessment.

Where authorised by law, we may give this information to other government agencies, including:

- Australian Bureau of Statistics
- Reserve Bank of Australia.

We also provide taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements.

If you have an Australian Business Number, some information on this form may be collected under the A New Tax System (Australian Business Number Act) 1999 and will be used to update your details on the Australian Business Register (ABR). Where authorised by law, selected information may be made publicly available and some may be passed to a wide range of government agencies, including Commonwealth, state and local government agencies.

We are also authorised to collect the information on the PAYG payment summary – superannuation lump sum by one or more of the following Acts:

- Income Tax Assessment Act 1936
- Income Tax Assessment Act 1997
- Taxation Administration Act 1953.

The information you provide will help us to administer these Acts and other tax laws.

Where authorised by law, we may give this information to other government departments and agencies, including:

- Department of Education
- Department of Employment
- Services Australia
- Department of Social Services
- Department of Veterans' Affairs
- Australian Bureau of Statistics
- Reserve Bank of Australia

We also provide taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements.

If you have an Australian Business Number, some information on this form may be collected under the A New Tax System (Australian Business Number Act) 1999 and will be used to update your details on the Australian Business Register (ABR). Where authorised by law, selected information may be made publicly available and some may be passed to a wide range of government agencies, including Commonwealth, state and local government agencies.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you, how to make a complaint if you think we have breached the Australian Privacy Principles and how we will deal with any privacy complaints.

Short form privacy policy

The privacy policy prescribes our compliance with the Privacy Act 1988 and how we communicate our personal information handling practices, including how we hold and deal with that information.

Last updated 5 February 2019

Our short form privacy policy applies to personal information we collect and provides a concise overview of how we handle your personal information.

Our complete privacy policy can be accessed on our website. It provides more detail on the collection, storage, use and disclosure of the personal information we hold about you and how you can access or seek to amend that information.

Personal information handling practices

Collection

We aim to collect personal information about you in a fair and lawful way.

We may collect personal information:

- directly from you
- from other persons acting on your behalf
- from third parties
- from publicly available sources
- by using our formal access and information gathering powers.

We only collect personal information where it is reasonably necessary for, or directly related to, our functions and activities. These include but are not limited to:

- administering the taxation and superannuation laws
- administering the Australian Business Register
- our functions and activities as an employer.

Use and disclosure

We only use personal information for the purposes we collected it – purposes that relate to one of our functions or activities.

Division 355 of Schedule 1 to the Taxation Administration Act 1953 sets out specific circumstances in which personal information contained in taxation records can be recorded, used or disclosed.

In some circumstances, the law allows disclosure of personal information for reasons other than administering Australian tax laws. These include disclosures to:

- assist other government agencies to determine eligibility for government benefits
- law enforcement agencies for the purpose of investigating and prosecuting serious offences
- courts, tribunals, legal service providers and counsel representing the ATO in disputes and debt collection activities
- state and territory revenue offices.

If it is necessary for us to disclose your personal information, the recipient is bound by on-disclosure rules.

Protecting your privacy

Protecting your personal information is important to us.

We safeguard your privacy and the security of your personal information by taking steps to protect the information we hold about you, from loss, unauthorised access, use, modification or disclosure and against other misuse.

When personal information that we collect is no longer required, we destroy or delete it in a secure manner, in accordance with records authorities issued or agreed to by the National Archives.

Your choices

You can generally access the personal information that we hold about you and ask us to correct it.

For more information, see our complete privacy policy – accessing or amending personal information.

Our obligations

We are bound by:

- the Australian Privacy Principles
- the Privacy Act 1988

- the Australian Government Agencies Privacy Code \(the Privacy Code\)
- taxpayer confidentiality provisions in taxation law.

Your privacy if you make a tip-off

Your privacy rights if you report illegal activity or behaviour of concern.

Last updated 15 June 2023

Overview

If you would like to make a tip-off about illegal activity or behaviour of concern relating to COVID-19 or JobKeeper, or suspected tax misconduct – including phoenix, tax evasion, or shadow economy behaviour – you can either:

- complete the tip-off form
- phone us on 1800 060 062
- write to us.

When we receive information through a tip-off, we will consider it. Even if we don't take immediate action, the information you provide is still very important to us. It helps us understand industry trends and emerging issues and forms part of our engagement strategies.

Due to privacy and taxpayer confidentiality laws, we won't be able to inform you of the outcome of the information you provide. We also won't be able to provide you with progress updates.

When making a tip-off, you don't have to identify yourself if you don't want to. However, if you choose to provide your name and contact details, we may use that information to:

- understand the information you have provided
- contact you for more information about your tip-off
- use as part of our investigation of the alleged misconduct.

If you choose to provide your full name when making a tip-off via the tip-off form, you are able to advise us if you provide consent for us to share information (including your contact details) from the tip-off with:

- other federal government departments and law enforcement agencies
- state/territory government departments and law enforcement agencies.

We will not disclose any information we have which would identify you, except where you have provided consent, or we are required or authorised by law to do so. Where authorised by law, we may pass on the information that may identify you to other government departments and agencies, including benefit payment agencies such as Services Australia, and Health, and law enforcement agencies such as state and federal police. We may also pass on information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you, how you can complain about a breach of the Australian Privacy Principles or the Privacy Code, and how we will deal with any privacy complaint.

You can also refer to:

Privacy notice

We are authorised by the Taxation Administration Act 1953 to request your tax file number (TFN). We will use your TFN to identify you in our records. It is not an offence not to provide your TFN but if you don't our actions could be delayed.

We are also authorised by the Superannuation Guarantee (Administration) Act 1992 (SGAA) to collect information about individuals and employers. We use this information to help us administer the tax and super laws. If it isn't collected we can't administer the SGAA or take action. The information may be collected directly from you, or indirectly from an employer, individual or other third party entity.

Under the SGAA we are authorised to, among other things:

- process superannuation guarantee charge statements lodged by employers
- conduct audits on employers to verify compliance with the SGAA
- investigate queries from individuals about employers not paying superannuation contributions
- determine superannuation guarantee charge assessments on employers
- provide information and online tools for individuals and employers to help them understand and determine their rights and obligations under the SGAA

- use information provided by employers to facilitate superannuation payments for employees through the Small Business Superannuation Clearing House.

Where authorised by law, we may give this information to other government departments and agencies, including:

Request stapled super fund

Privacy notice for completing the Request stapled super fund form.

Last updated 1 November 2021

Privacy notice

We are authorised by the Taxation Administration Act 1953 (TAA) to request tax file numbers (TFNs). We will use the TFN and other information provided on this form to identify an employee for whom an employer (or their authorised agent) has requested stapled super fund information pursuant to section 32R of the Superannuation Guarantee (Administration) Act 1992 (SGAA) and provide the requested information (if available).

It is not an offence not to provide a TFN. However, if a TFN is not provided, there may be delays in processing the request for stapled super fund information as we must then rely on other information to identify an employee in ATO systems. Where this is not possible, we will not be able to provide the requested information.

We are authorised by law to give the information provided on this form to the agents the employer authorises to deal with requests for an employee's stapled super fund information on their behalf.

Where authorised by law, we may also give this information to other government departments and agencies. These agencies could include Services Australia and law enforcement agencies. We may also provide taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about:

- how you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you
- how to make a complaint if you think we have breached the Australian Privacy Principles

Privacy notice SMSF annual return

Self-managed superannuation fund annual return privacy notice (NAT 71226).

What we do with your SMSF information

We're authorised to ask for information on the Self-managed superannuation funds annual return by the:

- Taxation Administration Act 1953
- Superannuation Industry (Supervision) Act 1993
- Income Tax Assessment Act 1936 (ITAA 1936)
- Income Tax Assessment Act 1997 (ITAA 1997).

We use this information to help us administer the superannuation and taxation laws and for statistical purposes. If you don't provide this information, there may be a delay in processing your annual return.

Where authorised by law to do so, we may give the information in the annual return to other government agencies, including assistance agencies such as:

- Services Australia
- regulatory bodies
 - Australian Securities & Investments Commission
 - Australian Prudential Regulation Authority
 - law enforcement agencies and,
 - Australian Bureau of Statistics.

Tax file numbers

We can request tax file numbers (TFNs). We use TFNs to identify the SMSF and members in our records. It isn't an offence not to provide a TFN. However, if you don't provide a TFN, there may be a delay in processing your annual return.

Other personal information and how we use it

If you're the person authorised to sign the annual return, we collect some personal information about you on the annual return such as your name and contact details. That information allows us to contact you if we require more information on what you have provided on this annual return.

We also provide taxpayer information to treaty partners overseas under international tax agreements with many other countries.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you, how you may complain about a breach of the Australian Privacy Principles and how we will deal with any privacy complaint.

You can contact us if you have any questions see, How you can enquire or complain about a suspected breach.

Information collected by ABR

The Australian Business Register (ABR) is authorised by the A New Tax System (Australian Business Number) Act 1999 and other taxation laws to collect certain information relating to your SMSF. Business details supplied on your annual return may be used to update the information held in the ABR in relation to your SMSF. This may include cancelling the ABN if your SMSF is no longer entitled to be registered in the ABR.

Where authorised by law, selected information in the ABR may be made publicly available and some may be passed on to other Commonwealth, state, territory and local government agencies. These agencies may use ABR information for purposes authorised by their legislation or for carrying out other functions of their agency. Examples of possible uses include registration, reporting, compliance, validation and updating of databases.

You can find details of agencies that regularly receive information from the ABR or you can phone us on 13 92 26 between 8:00 am and 6:00 pm Monday to Friday to have a list of the agencies sent to you.

Privacy notice – Voice Biometrics

Privacy notice for our Voice Biometrics system.

Published 23 January 2026

We collect personal information about you on a phone call with you if, during the phone call, you either enrol for or verify a voiceprint in our Voice Biometric system.

Our privacy notices explain how we manage the personal information we collect.

When you enrol a voiceprint, we ask for some personal information so we can identify you. This information included your tax file number (TFN) or Australian Business Number (ABN) and your date of birth. We also collect a sample of your voice which we use to create your unique voiceprint.

The law prohibits tax officers from disclosing taxpayer information, except in specified circumstances. When dealing with you in relation to your tax affairs, to verify your identity, we are permitted by law to collect personal information, including TFNs, so that we as taxation officers comply with section 8XA and 8WB of the Taxation Administration Act 1953 (TAA) and Subdivision 355-B of Schedule 1 to the TAA. For further information, see the Background section in the Procedures for disclosing protected information.

It is not an offence to choose not to provide your TFN/ABN, however if you do not provide it, you will not be able to use our Voice Biometric system to enrol and verify your identity.

If you choose not to enrol your voiceprint into our Voice Biometric system, you will need to manually verify your identity with us each time you call by answering a series of questions.

Voiceprints are created if you consent. In some cases, we create voiceprints to deal with suspected unauthorised access to taxation records.

Your voice may change over time, and if you would like to update your ATO voiceprint to reflect these changes, you can do so by deleting and enrolling a new voiceprint. If you no longer require your voiceprint, you may request to have it deleted. To delete and/or enrol a new voiceprint, you will need to speak to an ATO call operator who will facilitate this process for you. You may contact an ATO call operator by calling 13 28 61.

After your voiceprint has been deleted you will no longer be able to use it to verify your identity. However, the voiceprint may be anonymized and used for fraud investigation purposes for up to 18 months after your request for its deletion.

A limited number ATO staff and contractors may undertake maintenance or testing activities of the Voice Biometric system. No one outside of Australia will have access to your Voice Biometric information, nor will any of your Voice Biometric information be transferred out of Australia.

Our privacy policy contains important information about your privacy, including information about how:

- you can access and seek correction of information we hold about you
- you can make a complaint if you think we have breached the Australian Privacy Principles
- we will deal with any privacy complaints.

For more information about privacy or if you believe your privacy has been compromised please phone 1300 661 542 and ask for the Privacy Hotline.
