Lodging a tax return for your business

You need to lodge a tax return if you carried on a business, even if your business hasn't earned any income. There's no threshold for business income. What you need to report and how you lodge your annual tax return for your business depends on your type of business entity.

To help you get it right at tax time, whether you use a tax agent or lodge your own tax return, see:

- Income and deductions for business
- Supporting your small business
- Tax time toolkit for small business

Sole traders

If you operate your business as a sole trader, you must lodge a tax return, even if your income is below the tax-free threshold. This includes:

- tax return for individuals, including the supplementary section
- business and professional items schedule for individuals.

In your return, report:

- your business income
- business deductions you can claim
- other income, such as salary and wages (from a payment summary or income statement), dividends and rental income
- any deductions you can claim as an individual.

You don't have to work out the amount of tax you are liable to pay. We'll do this for you when you lodge and issue an assessment showing either the amount of tax owing to us or your refund. If you have paid PAYG instalments during the income year, we'll automatically credit these instalments to you in your assessment.

How to lodge

You can lodge your Individual tax return:

- online with myTax
- with a registered tax agent

- by paper.

Lodging your tax return online with myTax or through an agent is the fastest way to get your return finalised.

Most refunds for paper tax returns are finalised within 50 days of lodgment. If you need to lodge by paper, contact us.

When to lodge

If you're lodging your own your tax return, it is due by 31 October. If you lodge through a registered tax agent, they'll tell you when they will lodge your tax return.

Partnerships and partners

If you operate your business as a partnership, the partnership lodges a partnership tax return, reporting the partnership's net income (assessable income less allowable expenses and deductions).

As an individual partner, you report on your individual tax return:

- your share of any partnership net income or loss
- any other assessable income, such as salary and wages (shown on a payment summary), dividends and rental income.

The partnership doesn't pay income tax on the income it earns. Instead, you and each of the partners pay tax on the share of net partnership income you receive.

How to lodge

You can lodge a partnership tax return:

- using standard business reporting (SBR)-enabled software – find out how at Online services for business
- with a registered tax agent
- by paper.

When to lodge

If you lodge the partnership tax return yourself, it is due by 31 October. If you lodge through a registered tax agent, they'll tell you when they will lodge your tax return.

Trusts and beneficiaries

If you operate your business through a trust:

- the trustee lodges a trust tax return
- each trust beneficiary lodges their own tax return, such as a company or individual tax return.

The trust reports its net income or loss. This is the trust's assessable income less deductions.

If you are the beneficiary of a trust, you report on your tax return:

- any income you receive from the trust
- any other assessable income such as
 - dividends
 - rental income
 - salary and wages (on an individual's payment summary or income statement).

How to lodge

You can lodge a trust tax return:

- using standard business reporting (SBR)-enabled software – find out how at Online services for business
- with a registered tax agent
- by paper.

When to lodge

If you lodge the trust tax return yourself, it is due by 31 October. If you lodge through a registered tax agent, they'll tell you when they will lodge your tax return.

Companies

If you operate your business through a company, the company needs to lodge a company tax return.

The company reports its taxable income, tax offsets and credits, PAYG instalments and the amount of tax it is liable to pay on that income or the amount that is refundable.

The company's income is separate from your personal income.

Deregistered companies

A company must lodge a final tax return prior to closing the business and being deregistered by the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC). Once a company has been deregistered, you can no longer lodge a company tax return – and we cannot process it.

To lodge a company tax return, you can consider reinstating a company after deregistration  with ASIC.

How to lodge

You can lodge a company tax return:

- online using standard business reporting \(SBR\)-enabled software. You must use SBR-enabled software to lodge online. You are not able to lodge directly in Online services for business
- with a registered tax agent
- by paper.

When to lodge

If you lodge the company tax return yourself, you need to check the due date. Generally, the lodgment and payment date for small companies is 28 February. If there are any prior year returns outstanding, the due date will be 31 October.

If you lodge through a registered tax agent, they'll tell you when they will lodge your tax return.

Notice of assessment

In most cases, we will issue a notice of assessment after you lodge your tax return.

We won't automatically issue a notice of assessment if you lodge a tax return for a:

- company – as the tax return is deemed to be a notice of the assessment.

- partnership – because a partnership is not a taxable entity. The partnership income or loss is distributed to the partners and included in their tax returns.
- non-taxable trust – because the presently entitled beneficiaries include their share of the net income of the trust in their own tax returns and pay tax on their share.

New pre-fill for TPAR

If you work as a contractor providing Taxable payment reporting system \(TPRS\) services, you need to include all your assessable income relating to this in your tax return.

Amounts reported to us through the Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) will now be pre-filled in your tax return. Most TPAR data will only be available after 28 August each year. Lodging in July or early August means this information may not appear yet. This could lead to omissions, the need for amendments, and repayment of refunds later. Lodging after 28 August gives you the best experience and reduces risk of errors.

For more information, see Taxable payments reporting and contractors.

Paying quarterly GST instalments and reporting annually

You are eligible to pay quarterly GST instalment amounts advised by us and report your GST information annually, if you:

- carry on a business with an aggregated turnover of less than $10 million
- do not carry on a business but your GST turnover is $2 million or less.

If we work out that you are eligible, your activity statement will have your instalment amount pre-printed at option 3. If you choose this option, it will be pre-selected for you on subsequent activity statements until you're eligible to choose an option again.

Paying and reporting GST annually

You must assess your eligibility to report and pay GST annually as at 31 July each year. You can't continue to report and pay GST annually if on this date:

- your projected GST turnover meets the GST registration turnover threshold, that is
 - $75,000 for businesses and other 'enterprises'
 - $150,000 for non-profit organisations
- you are required to register for GST for some other reason – for example, because you provide taxi travel.

You must advise us if you are no longer eligible to report and pay GST annually. We will then change your GST reporting cycle to monthly or quarterly with effect from 1 July and send you the correct activity statements to lodge.

Working out your projected GST turnover

To estimate your projected GST turnover as at 31 July you need to add:

- the total GST-exclusive price of the taxable and GST-free sales you have made or expect to make for the month of July
- the total GST-exclusive price of the taxable and GST-free sales you expect to make for the next 11 months.

You should not include any sales involving the transfer of ownership of a capital asset of yours, or sales made or likely to be made solely when ceasing or substantially and permanently reducing the size or scale of your enterprise.

Cancelling your annual election

If you no longer wish to report and pay GST annually, you can revoke your annual election and report GST quarterly or monthly. You must notify us by 28 October to change your reporting requirements for the financial year. Otherwise you will remain on annual reporting for the remainder of the year and your election will be revoked from 1 July of the following year.

We may review your eligibility for the annual election if you are not meeting all of your obligations.

Taxable payments annual report (TPAR)

When your business or government entity needs to report contractor payments and lodge a TPAR.

Last updated 14 March 2022

Businesses and government entities who make payments to contractors may need to report these payments and lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR).

Contractors can include subcontractors, consultants and independent contractors. They can operate as sole traders (individuals), companies, partnerships or trusts.

A TPAR must be lodged by 28 August each year.

QC 32057

Work out if you need to lodge a TPAR

Work out if you need to lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) for payments or grants made to contractors.

Last updated 23 April 2024

Some businesses and government entities need to lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) for payments made to contractors or subcontractors for certain services during the financial year.

Some government entities need to report grants paid to people or organisations with an Australian business number (ABN)

A TPAR must be lodged by 28 August each year.

Taxable payment reporting system services

The services that come under the Taxable payment reporting system (TPRS) are:

- building and construction
- cleaning
- courier and road freight
- information technology (IT)

- security, investigation or surveillance.

If your business provides these services and pays contractors to deliver them, you may need to lodge a TPAR.

When your business provides TPRS services and other unrelated services

If your business provides both courier and road freight services, you must combine the payments you receive for both these services. Do this when you work out if you need to lodge a TPAR.

If TPRS services are only part of the services your business provides, you need to work out what percentage of the payments you receive are for TPRS services each financial year. You do this to determine if you need to lodge a TPAR.

This doesn't apply to building and construction services you provide.

If the total payments you receive for TPRS services are:

- 10% or more of your business income: you must lodge a TPAR
- less than 10% of your business income: you do not need to lodge a TPAR.

Steps to work out if you need to lodge

Step 1: calculate your total payments received from contractors for each relevant service.

Add up all payments your business received for each relevant TPRS service during the financial year. Include payments received when employees, contractors or sub-contractors performed services on your behalf.

Step 2: calculate your current or projected business income

If you have been operating your business for:

- the full financial year: use your current business income for the year
- less than 12 months of the financial year: use your projected business income. Do this by working out what your business income will be for the next full financial year.

Step 3: calculate what percent of your business income is from a relevant service

Calculate this percentage by using the following formula for each financial year:

$$\text{Total payments received for a relevant service} \div \text{current or projected business income} \times 100 = \%$$

You must lodge a TPAR if:

- 10% or more of your business income for the financial year is from a relevant service
- you made payments to contractors for a relevant service during the year.

If you need to lodge a TPAR, report the total contractor payments made to each contractor for the relevant service provided on your behalf.

Payments businesses need to report in their TPAR

Businesses need to report payments made to contractors in their Taxable payments annual report (TPAR).

Last updated 23 April 2024

Payments you need to report

You must report by 28 August each year.

Report payments made to contractors or subcontractors for the following services:

- building and construction services
- cleaning services
- courier services
- road freight services
- IT services
- security, investigation or surveillance services

Report the total payment amount if an invoice you receive from a contractor includes both labour and materials.

Payments you don't need to report

You don't need to report the following payments in your TPAR:

- payments for materials only
- incidental labour
- unpaid invoices after 30 June: only report payments you made on or before 30 June each year
- workers engaged under a labour hire or on-hire arrangement. This includes a labour hire firm that hires workers under a labour-hire arrangement to provide services
- pay as you go (PAYG) withholding payments. For example, you don't report payments to employees. Report these payments through the PAYG withholding annual report or Single Touch Payroll (STP)
- payments to foreign residents for work performed in Australia. These payments are generally subject to PAYG foreign resident withholding. If the payments are not subject to PAYG withholding, then you need to report them in a TPAR
- foreign residents for work performed overseas
- contractors who do not quote an Australian business number \(ABN\)
- payments in consolidated groups

- payments for private and domestic projects.

Incidental labour

Exclude the labour amount for invoices that list both materials and labour. Do this if the labour is incidental to the supply of materials.

Example: incidental labour component

Kevin buys new taps from Harry's Hardware to install in a commercial building.

Harry's Hardware installs one tap to show Kevin how to install the rest.

Harry's Hardware invoices Kevin for the taps. On the invoice, Harry's Hardware includes a small amount for labour to show the installation.

In this case, labour is incidental. Kevin does not need to report the payment he makes to Harry's Hardware in a TPAR.

Contractors who do not quote an ABN

If an ABN is not provided, you may need to withhold an amount from the payment for that supply under the PAYG withholding arrangements.

Report the amounts withheld in either the:

- TPAR
- PAYG payment summary – withholding where ABN not quoted form (NAT3448).

Only report this information in one of these annual reports, not both.

Payments within consolidated groups

If you're in a consolidated or multiple entry consolidated group for income tax purposes, you don't need to report payments made to another member of that same group.

This is because members of a consolidated group or multiple entry consolidated group are taxed as a single entity.

You only need to report payments to contractors for services who are outside the consolidated group.

Example: payments to contractors within a consolidated group

Brick Co and Paint Co are both members of the same consolidated group for income tax purposes.

Brick Co provides building services. It makes a payment to Paint Co for painting its building project.

Brick Co and Paint Co are in the same consolidated group. Brick Co doesn't report the payment made to Paint Co for painting services.

However, Brick Co must report payments made to entities outside the consolidated group for the supply of building and construction services.

Payments for private and domestic projects

You don't need to report if you are:

- an individual who is not running a business and you make payments to contractors for services
 - for example, if you are a homeowner building or renovating your main residence
- a business making payments to contractors for services for private purposes
 - for example, cleaning your own home.

If the work is related to carrying on a business, the amounts paid to the contractors for this work must be reported. These are payments that businesses can claim as a tax deduction.

Example: homeowner paying for building and construction services

Kristyn has an ABN for the purposes of running a design business. She manages the construction of her new home and makes payments directly to the contractors.

Kristyn doesn't need to report payments she makes to contractors. This is because she is acting in a domestic capacity, not as a business.

Example: mixed personal and business payments in the cleaning industry

Svetlana is a sole trader with an ABN. She runs her own cleaning agency.

She cleans homes and offices for her clients. Svetlana keeps a list of contract cleaners she engages and pays for each cleaning job.

Svetlana asks one of these contractors to clean her own home. She pays the contractor for this from her personal bank account.

Svetlana must report the payments made to contractors that perform cleaning services for her clients.

However, Svetlana doesn't need to report the payment made to the contractor for cleaning her own home. This is because the payment is made by Svetlana in her private capacity and not as part of her business.

Taxable payments reporting worksheet

QC 51596

Payments government entities need to report in their TPAR

Government entities need to report certain payments and grants in their Taxable payments annual report (TPAR).

Last updated 23 April 2024

When a government entity must lodge a TPAR

Federal, state, territory and local government entities must report:

- the total payments they make to an entity, wholly or partly, for providing services
- federal, state and territory entities also report the total grants paid to people or organisations that have an ABN
- by 28 August each year.

Local government entities don't need to report grants.

Some government entities do not need to lodge a TPAR.

Government entities that must report

Government entities that must report include:

- federal government departments
- executive or statutory agencies
- statutory authorities
- state or territory government departments and agencies
- local governing bodies established by or under state or territory law
- government-owned corporations
- organisations that are either established

- by the federal government, a state or a territory (whether under a law or not) to carry on an enterprise
- for a public purpose by an Australian law
- can be separately identified because of their location or nature of the activities they carry on, (this includes organisations that are part of a department or branch).

Government entities that don't report

Some government entities are exempt from lodging a TPAR. However, these exemptions don't apply to departments of the Commonwealth, a state or territory.

Government entities are exempt if they are:

- providers of education courses
- providers of childcare, including registered carers and providers of approved childcare services
- hospitals
- providers of medical services
- cemeteries, cemetery boards or authorities
- ministerial councils or related bodies, including those established by the Council of Australian Governments
- Aboriginal land councils
- national law bodies established under laws enacted by the states and territories
- public museums, public libraries or public art galleries
- community associations, for example, parents and friends' associations
- industry or professional associations, including registration and licencing boards and advisory councils
- water catchment authorities, catchment councils and natural resource management boards
- trustees of trusts or managers of funds established for the public benefit or in the public interest

- superannuation funds
- defence force mess halls, canteens, brigades or clubs
- public zoological gardens, public botanical gardens, public parks, public reserves or public alpine resorts
- commissions of inquiry or Royal Commissions
- courts or tribunals
- Commonwealth, state or territory Houses of Parliament
- community-based volunteer emergency services. For example, Country Fire Associations, volunteer fire brigades and State Emergency Services
- entities with the primary purpose of promoting the arts
- entertainment, recreation or sporting venues. This includes showgrounds, stadiums and racecourses, or entities with the primary purpose of managing such venues
- seaports or airports
- prisons, detention centres, remand centres or corrections offices
- embassies or consular offices.

A non-exempt government entity must report payments to us even if they are making payments on behalf of an exempt government entity.

Payments for services to report

Federal, state, territory and local government entities need to report payments made to an entity, wholly or partly, for providing services in the TPAR. This includes payments made to overseas suppliers and governments.

Services can include actions that:

- a business performs
- provide you with assistance or support
- may be performed on goods or in conjunction with the supply of goods. For example, a supplier delivers goods and then performs an installation

- are performed as part of trade or commerce
- may be performed under a contract but not an employment contract.

If you receive invoices that include both goods and services, whether itemised or combined, report the whole amount of the payment. Do this unless the supply of the services is incidental to the supply of goods.

Example: when the service is incidental to the supply of goods

Sunshine Meadows Council is a local governing body. It orders 1,700 pens from an office supply company and pays an additional fee for delivery.

Delivery of the pens is a service. However, since this service has been provided incidentally to the provision of the goods, it doesn't need to be reported.

Example: councillor sitting fees and allowances

City Council is a local governing body. It pays councillor meeting attendance fees and allowances for services provided to the council.

City Council doesn't apply the pay as you go (PAYG) withholding provisions to these payments.

Payments to the councillor are considered payments, wholly or partly, for services. These payments need to be reported in City Council's TPAR.

Example: property management services

Department ABC uses the services of an external property manager, Property Fix Services to complete various property management functions.

Payments to Property Fix Services are considered a payment, wholly or partly, for services. These payments need to be reported in Department ABC's TPAR.

Example: property manager engaging contractors and paying from own funds

Property Fix Services (which is paid by Department ABC) engages contractors to provide property management services.

Property Fix Services pays the contractors from its funds.

Property Fix is not a government entity. It doesn't need to lodge a TPAR.

Example: property manager engaging contractors and paying from government entity funds

Department ABC requests major changes to one of its buildings managed by Property Fix Services.

Department ABC adds funds into its bank account. This account is available to Property Fix Services to pay for works and contractors.

Payments to these contractors are from Department ABC. They need to be reported in the Department ABC's TPAR.

Payments you do not need to report

You don't need to report payments made:

- for goods only, which includes any form of tangible property
- made to other Australian government entities
- made electronically by
 - BPAY
 - recurring direct debit
 - credit or debit card
 - third-party payment processors facilitating any of the above methods
- for telephone and internet services
- for electricity, water, sewerage or gas
- for transportation of employees. This includes airfares, taxi fares, train or bus fares, or fares for water transport
- for insurance
- for accommodation in commercial premises, (for example, rent payments)
- for accommodation in a hotel, motel, inn, hostel, boarding house, caravan park or camping ground
- for a lease of goods
- for the creation, grant, transfer, assignment or use of a right under licence, (for example, a licence to use a software product)
- for financial supplies(for example, bank fees)
- for membership to a professional association or body
- for services relating to court or tribunal functions, (for example, payments to jurors, witnesses or advocates for minors).

Speak to your software provider on how best to exclude these payments from your report. However, we will accept these types of payments if it creates an increased administrative burden to exclude them.

Unpaid invoices as of 30 June each year

Only report payments that have been paid on or before 30 June each year.

For example, if you receive an invoice in June but you don't pay that invoice until July, report that payment in the next financial year (the year you paid it).

PAYG withholding payments

Report PAYG withholding payments in your PAYG withholding annual report or through Single Touch Payroll (STP).

Don't report in PAYG withholding payments in your TPAR.

Examples include payments to:

- employees
- workers engaged under a voluntary agreement to withhold
- workers engaged under a labour-hire or on-hire arrangement, (this includes a labour hire firm that hires workers under a labour-hire arrangement to provide services).

Payees who don't quote an ABN

If an ABN is not provided, you may need to withhold an amount from the payment for that supply under the PAYG withholding arrangements.

Report the amounts withheld in either the:

- TPAR
- PAYG payment summary withholding — where ABN not quoted.

Report this information in one of these annual reports, not both.

If a supplier does not provide an ABN, see Statement by a supplier not quoting an ABN.

Grants paid to people or organisations

Federal, state and territory government entities only need to report grants paid to people or organisations that have an ABN. This includes grants paid to not-for-profit organisations that have an ABN.

Grants don't need to be reported if:

- you are a local government entity
- the grant was paid to an individual who does not have an ABN
- the grant was paid to another government entity.

What is a grant

Grants can take many forms. They can include:

- subsidies
- rebates
- sponsorships and similar arrangements.

Grants usually:

- are explicitly tied to a government policy or goal
- are disbursed on a one-off or longer-term basis. They are not provided as ongoing, permanent funding
- require recipients to submit applications to receive grants
- have conditions attached. For example, reporting obligations or the requirement to include government logos on marketing materials
- don't need to be repaid.

Refer to your jurisdiction's financial management guidance on what programs are considered grants. For example, federal government entities should refer to the Commonwealth grants rules and guidelines.

If multiple grant payments were made:

- Under the same grant program name, to the same business in a financial year, each payment may be reported separately or added together. If added together, the date of the grant payment can be reported at the end of the relevant financial year (for example, 30 June 2021).
- Under different grant programs to the same business in a financial year, the total of the payments made in the relevant financial year under each program name must be reported separately.

Example: small business acceleration program

A state government Department of Industry runs a small business acceleration program.

This program involves a series of grants and rebates paid to small businesses in the state. The grants and rebates promote investment in business and support the economy.

To be eligible for the program, small businesses must:

- apply to the Department of Industry
- carry on a business in the state
- meet certain selection criteria.

Applying for a grant

Fresh Paws is a dog washing business located in the state. Under the small business acceleration program, it applies for a grant.

As part of its application, Fresh Paws provides its ABN and other documents to meet the conditions of the grant program.

Fresh Paws meets the eligibility criteria and is successful in receiving the grant. The Department of Industry must report this grant on their TPAR.

Applying for a rebate

Tech Specialists is a business that teaches computer skills to the elderly. It's located in the state.

It buys 5 laptops for use in its business. Under the small business acceleration program, it applies for a rebate for the cost of the computers.

As part of its application, Tech Specialists provides its ABN and includes the invoices as proof of its expense.

Tech Specialists meets the eligibility criteria and is successful in receiving the rebate.

The Department of Industry must report the rebate on their TPAR.

Non-assessable non-exempt grants

Some grants that you report may be treated as non-assessable non-exempt (NANE) government income for tax purposes. Examples of these grants include:

- COVID-19 business support payments
- Natural disasters
- Water infrastructure improvement payments

For information about how to report a NANE payment in your TPAR go to TPAR contractor details to report.

If a grant is NANE income for a recipient, they don't need to include the amount in their assessable income. For more information on how grant recipients can treat grant amounts as NANE income, see Non-assessable non-exempt government grants for grant recipients.

COVID-19 business support payments

Eligible government COVID-19 business support payments may be NANE income for tax purposes.

There are 2 types of government grant and support programs, under which COVID-19 payments to support businesses may be non-taxable (NANE).

These are:

- state and territory grants relating to the recovery from COVID-19 paid in the 2020–21 or 2021–22 financial year
- Australian Government support payments established under the COVID-19 Business Assistance Program paid in the 2021–22 financial year.

For the list of eligible grants and support programs that have been formally declared by the Minister under a legislative instrument to be eligible for NANE treatment, see Eligible COVID-19 business grants and support programs.

Example: eligible grant for COVID-19 business support payments

The Victorian Government created the Business Support Fund. This fund provides grants to support businesses impacted by the stage 3 and 4 COVID-19 restrictions.

The minister declared this to be an eligible grant program, as it:

- was first publicly announced after 12 September 2020
- responded to the economic impacts of the pandemic
- was directed at supporting businesses whose operations were significantly disrupted as a result of the public health response.

These payments are part of the eligible grant program under section 59-97 of the ITAA 1997 'State and Territory grants to small business relating to the recovery from the coronavirus known as COVID-19'.

The Victorian Government is required to report that this grant is a type listed or described under a provision of Division 59 of the ITAA 1997 on the TPAR form.

Natural disasters - storms and floods

Recovery grants

Small businesses and primary producers affected by storms and floods may be eligible to receive special disaster recovery grants.

The following storms and floods had certain categories of grants paid under the Disaster Recovery Funding Arrangements 2018 ↗ that are treated as NANE income:

- Cyclone Seroja (occurred on 11 and 12 April 2021) – Category C recovery grants are NANE income for the 2021–22 financial year and onwards.
- 2021 storms and floods (occurred between 19 February 2021 and 31 March 2021) – Category D recovery grants are NANE income for 2020–21 financial year and onwards.
- 2019 North Queensland floods (occurred between 25 January 2019 and 28 February 2019) – Category C or D recovery grants are NANE income for the 2018–19 financial year and onwards.

2019 North Queensland flood: restocking, replanting or farm infrastructure grants

Primary producers may be eligible to receive certain grants for replacing or repairing farm infrastructure, restocking or replanting, or a similar purpose.

These grants are NANE income for the 2018–19 financial year and later financial years if the agreement was entered into between 1 February 2019 and 1 July 2019.

Example: eligible recovery grants for the 2021 storms and floods

The NSW government makes a disaster recovery grant to Vege Co, a primary producer (as defined in the Disaster Recovery Funding Arrangements 2018 ) affected by the storms and floods that occurred between 19 February 2021 and 31 March 2021. The payment to Vege Co is made under a category D grant of the Disaster Recovery Funding Arrangements 2018.

This payment is part of the eligible recovery grants under section 59-99 of the ITAA 1997 '2021 floods and storms - recovery grants'.

The NSW Government is required to report that this grant is a type listed or described under a provision of Division 59 of the ITAA 1997 on the TPAR form.

Natural disasters - bushfires

- 2019 to 2020 Bushfires Relief Recovery Payments
 - any bushfire relief recovery or benefits provided by any level of government, including
 - Commonwealth
 - state
 - territory
 - a municipal corporation
 - a local governing body.

Water infrastructure improvement payments

Payments for Sustainable rural water use and infrastructure programs are NANE income if the participant (recipient) chooses to have the payment treated this way. The participant can also choose to treat it as ordinary income.

For more information on the choice options and eligible programs visit Sustainable rural water use and infrastructure program.

Building and construction services

Lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) to report payments made to contractors.

Last updated 23 April 2024

When a business operates primarily in building and construction services

If you are running a business primarily in the building and construction industry, you must lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) if you:

- make payments to contractors or subcontractors for building and construction services
- have an Australian business number (ABN).

Payments made to employees are not reported in your TPAR.

Each year, you must:

- review if you need to lodge a TPAR
- report these payments to us on your TPAR by 28 August.

You are considered to be a business that primarily operates in building and construction services if any apply:

- in the current financial year, 50% or more of your business income is earned from providing building and construction services

- in the current financial year, 50% or more of your business activity relates to building and construction services
- in the financial year immediately before the current financial year, 50% or more of your business income was earned from providing building and construction services.

See the steps on how to Work out if you need to lodge

To determine if an entity is in the building and construction industry, see Subregulation 64(6): Taxation Administration Amendment Regulation 2012 \(No.1\)

Example: business primarily in the building and construction industry

FS Builders earns all of its income from building commercial properties for its clients.

FS Builders is primarily in the building and construction industry. This is because 50% or more of its income is from providing building and construction services.

FS Builders must report the total payments it makes to contractors for providing building and construction services in a TPAR.

Example: business primarily in building and construction services

ABC is a property developer. It has purchased a block of land in the Melbourne. It intends to build apartments on the block of land.

ABC has created a separate entity called Upmarket Apartments. This entity manages the project and construction of the apartments.

Upmarket Apartments must report payments to contractors for providing building and construction services.

It must report because 50% or more of its business activity relates to building and construction services in a TPAR.

Example: not all income is from building and construction services

Sascha's Cabinet Makers is a business that makes and installs custom-made kitchen cabinets.

Cabinet making is a building and construction service activity.

Sascha's Cabinet Makers also produces and sells ornamental wooden carvings.

Sascha's Cabinet Makers earned the following income from its business activities:

- 45% from cabinet making and 55% from carvings: for 2018–19 income year
- 60% from cabinet making and 40% from carvings: for 2019–20 income year
- 40% from cabinet making and 60% from carvings: for 2020–21 income year.

Sascha's Cabinet Makers must report the payments made to contractors in the 2020 income year in a TPAR. This is because it earned 50% or more of its income from building and construction services in that year.

Although it will not earn 50% or more of its income from building and construction services in the 2021 income year, it still must report payments to contractors in the 2021 TPAR. This is because the financial year immediately before was above 50%.

Example: mining infrastructure

Black Coal establishes a new mining facility that requires the construction of a range of infrastructure.

Black Coal contracts Earl's Earthworks to carry out the work. Earl's Earthworks subcontracts the work.

Black Coal doesn't need to report its payments to Earl's Earthworks. This is because all of its income is from coal mining.

Earl's Earthworks must report payments it makes to subcontractors in a TPAR. This is because it carries on a business primarily in building and construction services.

Example: retail business providing minor building and construction services

Harry's Hardware is a business that sells building equipment to builders and homeowners.

For an additional fee, Harry's Hardware can arrange the installation of certain products, such as a skylight.

Harry's Hardware doesn't report payments to contractors who perform the installation. This is because the business is primarily in retail services and not in building and construction services.

Example: separate entity for building and construction services

Harry's Hardware sets up a separate business entity called Harry's Installation Services. This entity installs the products sold by Harry's Hardware.

Harry's Hardware doesn't report payments made to contractors in a TPAR. This is because it is not carrying on a business primarily in building and construction services.

However, Harry's Installation Services must report payments it makes to contractors for services in a TPAR. This is because all the income for Harry's Installation Services is from providing building and construction services (installation of products).

Example: reporting payments to a subcontractor

Robin's Installation Services (principal contractor) contracts Simone (subcontractor) to install products.

Simone can't complete all the work, so she subcontracts some of the work to Bill (subcontractor).

Robin's Installation Services must report the payments it makes to Simone in a TPAR.

If Simone is carrying on a business that is primarily building and construction services, she must report payments she makes to Bill in a TPAR.

What are building and construction services

Only report payments you make to contractors for building and construction services.

Contractors can be sole traders, companies, partnerships or trusts.

The definition of building and construction services is broad. It can include any of the activities listed below if they are performed on, or in relation to, any part of a building, structure, works, surface or sub-surface:

- alteration
- assembly
- construction
- demolition

- design
- destruction
- dismantling
- erection
- excavation
- finishing
- improvement
- installation
- maintenance, excluding the maintenance, service or repairs of equipment and tools
- management of building and construction services
- modification
- organisation of building and construction services
- removal
- repair, excluding the service or repairs of equipment and tools
- site preparation.

Examples of building and construction services

The following occupations and work activities satisfy the definition of building and construction services:

- architectural work, including drafting and design
- asphalt and bitumen work
- assembly, installation or erection of prefabricated houses
- block laying
- bricklaying
- building of room components, (for example, kitchens, bathroom components, laundry components, cupboards and similar components)

- cabinet making, including joinery and off-site fabrication for installation at a building site
- cable laying
- communications construction
- concreting, including formwork, pouring and finishing
- construction and sealing roads
- construction management
- decorating
- demolition
- distribution line construction
- drainage work
- dredging
- earthworks
- electrical machinery, heavy, installation (on-site assembly)
- electrical work, including electrical inspection
- electrical construction
- elevator and escalator installation and work
- engineering
- equipment rental with operator, (if there is no operator, it is rental of a good and not a building and construction activity)
- erection of frames
- erection of scaffolding
- excavation and grading
- fencing
- finishing
- flood control system construction
- flooring, (for example, tiling, laying carpet, laying linoleum, timber flooring, floating floors, resilient flooring, slate tiles and similar) flooring)

- foundation work
- gas plumbing
- glass and glazing work
- hanging or installing doors
- installation of fittings
- installation of hard-wired alarm systems,(for example, security, fire, smoke and similar alarms)
- installation of hot water systems
- installation of prefabricated components, (for example, kitchens, bathroom components, laundry components, cupboards and similar components)
- installation of prefabricated temperature-controlled structures
- installation of septic tanks
- installation of solar devices, (for example, hot water or electricity connections)
- installation of tanks
- installation of window frames
- installation of windows
- installation or work on devices for heating and cooling
- insulation work, (for example, walls, roofs, windows and similar structures)
- internet infrastructure construction
- irrigation system construction
- land clearing
- landscaping construction, including paving and design
- levelling sites
- painting,(for example, internal and external surfaces, including roofs)
- pile driving

- pipeline construction
- plastering or other wall and ceiling construction
- plumbing work, including plumbing inspection
- preparation of site
- project management
- rendering or other internal or external surface finishes
- retaining wall construction
- river work construction
- roofing and guttering
- sewage or stormwater drainage system construction
- stonework
- surveying
- swimming pool installation
- swimming pool construction,(for example, below ground concrete or fibreglass)
- tiling, (for example, walls and similar structures)
- timber work
- wallpapering
- waterproofing interior and exterior surfaces
- weatherboarding.

Examples of buildings, structures, works, surfaces or sub-surfaces

The following is a list of what we consider to be buildings, structures, works, surfaces or sub-surfaces:

- aerodrome runways
- apartments
- breakwaters

- bridges
- canals
- commercial buildings
- communications, internet and electrical infrastructure
- dams
- duplex houses
- electricity power plants
- elevated highway
- flats
- footpath, kerb and guttering
- furnaces
- garages
- golf courses
- harbour works
- high-rise flats
- highways
- housing buildings, including prefabricated housing
- industrial buildings
- jetties
- lakes
- mine sites
- office buildings
- oil refineries
- parking lots
- pipelines
- power plants
- railways

- roads
- semi-detached houses
- sewage storage and treatment plants
- sheds
- sports fields
- streets
- television or radio transmission towers
- tunnels
- water tanks
- waterworks.

Examples: inspections and certifications

Joe's Builders was contracted by a property developer to build a 15-storey building.

Joe's Builders engaged Oz Management, to certify each stage of the building work.

Oz Management followed the project through to the end. It carried out the building inspections and issued the occupancy permit.

Joe's Builders must report the total payments it made to Oz Management for the inspections and certification in a TPAR.

Example: testing and tagging

LA Plumbing is a business primarily in building and construction services. It engages City Spark to test and tag the electrical equipment and tools used in its business.

City Spark's business is to test electrical appliances to ensure they are safe.

The payments LA Plumbing makes to City Spark for testing and tagging are not reported in a TPAR. This is because the activity is not a building and construction service.

Example: equipment hire with or without an operator

Total Machinery is an equipment hire store. It offers plant and machinery for hire to businesses providing building and construction services. Equipment for hire includes bobcats, scaffolding and tippers (dry hire).

Total Machinery can also provide the equipment with an operator (wet hire) for an additional fee. Wet hire is a building and construction service.

A builder who hires a bobcat with an operator must report the payment it makes to Total Machinery in a TPAR. This is because the builder is paying for a building and construction service, not just equipment hire.

Cleaning services

When a business providing cleaning services must lodge a TPAR to report payments made to contractors.

Last updated 23 April 2024

When your business provides cleaning and other services

You must lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) if all conditions are met:

- your business provides cleaning services to other people or businesses
- you paid contractors or subcontractors to provide these cleaning services on behalf of your business
- your business has an Australian business number (ABN).

Payments made to employees are not reported in your TPAR.

Each year, you must:

- review if you need to lodge a TPAR
- report these payments to us on your TPAR by 28 August.

If cleaning services are only part of what your business provides, you may need to fill out a TPAR.

You should:

- work out how much of your business income came from cleaning services
- add up the money your business was paid for providing cleaning services for the financial year, a financial year is the 12 months from 1 July to 30 June
- include payments for services provided by both employees and contractors or subcontractors
- work out the total amount of your business income for the year.

If the total payments, you receive for cleaning services are:

- 10% or more of your gross business income: you must lodge a TPAR
- less than 10% of your gross business income: you don't lodge a TPAR.

You can also choose to lodge a TPAR even if you are:

- under the 10% threshold (see examples below)
- unsure if you will be under the threshold.

See the steps on how to Work out if you need to lodge

Example: business providing cleaning and other services

Jehan Building has an ABN and provides building maintenance services. These services include office cleaning.

Jehan Building uses both employees and contractors to perform the office cleaning work.

Jehan Building works out the following amounts for the financial year:

- current goods and services tax (GST) turnover = $100,000
- total payments received for cleaning services = $10,000
- total payments paid to contractors = $5,000
- total payments paid to employees = $6,000.

To work out if they need to lodge a TPAR, Jehan Building calculates:

$$\begin{aligned} & \mathbf{$10,000} \text{ (total payments received for cleaning services)} \\ & \text{multiplied by } \mathbf{100} \\ & \div \mathbf{$100,000} \text{ (total business income)} \\ & = \mathbf{10\%}. \end{aligned}$$

Jehan Building must lodge a TPAR. This is because the payments they received for cleaning services ($10,000) is 10% of their total business income for that year ($100,000).

In a TPAR, they need to report the total amount (adding up to $5,000) they paid to each of their contractors for cleaning services.

They don't include the $6,000 for payments made to their employees. This is because the TPAR is for reporting payments to contractors, not employees.

Example: business selling cleaning products and occasionally providing cleaning services

Cleaners 123 has an ABN and sells cleaning products.

Occasionally, customers that purchase their cleaning products also engage them to provide cleaning services.

Cleaners 123 hires contractors to provide the cleaning services for these customers.

At the end of the financial year, Cleaners 123 calculates the total payments received for cleaning services. If this is 10% or more of their current or projected business income, they must report payments made to contractors for cleaning services in a TPAR.

Examples of cleaning services

Cleaning services can include, but are not limited to, the following cleaning activities:

- carpet
- chimney
- exterior, except sandblasting
- gutter
- interior
- park and park facilities
- road and street sweeping
- swimming pool.

The cleaning services can be done on:

- buildings
- equipment
- events, including:
 - agricultural

- cultural
- entertainment
- scientific
- staging of sporting
- technological
- exhibitions
- industrial machinery
- places
- residences. For example, homes
- surfaces
- structures
- transport vehicles, including:
 - airplanes
 - buses
 - cars and other motor vehicles
 - ferries
 - ships
 - trains
 - trams
 - trucks.

Example: cleaning business reporting contractor payments for labour and materials

Cleanest Management is a cleaning business with an ABN. It supplies cleaning services.

Cleanest Management hires a contractor to complete the cleaning work. As part of the agreement, the contractor provides their own cleaning products.

At the end of the month, the contractor provides Cleanest Management with a tax invoice for $3,300 (GST inclusive). The invoice is for their cleaning services and the cleaning products purchased and used for the job.

Over the year, the contractor's payments for cleaning services provided to Cleanest Management total $39,600.

Cleanest Management must include the amount of $39,600 when reporting payments made to the contractor in a TPAR.

For a simple version of this content, see TPAR for cleaning services – Easier to read information

Courier services

When a business providing courier and delivery services must lodge a TPAR to report payments made to contractors.

Last updated 23 April 2024

When your business provides courier and other services

You must lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) if:

- your business provides courier services to other people or businesses
- you paid contractors or subcontractors to provide these courier services on behalf of your business
- you have an Australian business number (ABN).

Payments made to employees are not reported in your TPAR.

Each year, you must:

- review if you need to lodge a TPAR

- report these payments to us on your TPAR by 28 August.

If courier services are only part of what your business provides, you may need to fill out a TPAR.

You should:

- work out how much of your business income came from courier services
- add up the money your business was paid for providing courier services for the financial year, a financial year is the 12 months from 1 July to 30 June
- include payments for services provided by both employees and contractors or subcontractors
- work out the total amount of your business income for the year.

If an arrangement with your customer involves providing both goods and courier services, determine if the courier services are either:

- composite supply of delivering the goods: delivery is essential to the supply of the goods, the delivery involved is not a 'courier service'
- mixed supply of courier services and goods: the delivery part of the service is a large cost or could be made as a separate supply, (for example, the delivery part is a 'courier service').

If the total payments, you receive for courier or delivery services are:

- 10% or more of your gross business income: you must lodge a TPAR
- less than 10% of your gross business income: you do not lodge a TPAR.

From 1 July 2019, if your business provides courier and road freight services, you must combine the payments you receive for both services. Do this when you work out if you need to lodge a TPAR.

You can also choose to lodge a TPAR even if you are:

- under the 10% threshold
- unsure if you will be under the threshold.

See the steps on how to Work out if you need to lodge a TPAR

Example: business providing food delivery services to restaurants

Immediate Food is a company with an ABN that picks up and delivers food from restaurants to customers.

Customers contact a restaurant directly to place their order. The restaurant uses delivery drivers subcontracted by Immediate Food to deliver the food.

Immediate Food charges the restaurants for the delivery service they provide.

Immediate Food is supplying a courier service because it is delivering the food to customers on behalf of the restaurants.

At the end of the financial year, the total payment Immediate Food receives for courier services is 15% of their current business income. Therefore, Immediate Food must report the total payments made to each subcontractor for courier services in a TPAR.

The restaurants that partner with Immediate Food are offering their takeaway customers a choice. Customers can either pick up their order from the restaurant or have it delivered to them (by Immediate Food).

Therefore, the restaurants are also supplying courier services when they deliver customer orders through Immediate Food.

At the end of the financial year, if the total payment the restaurants receive for courier services is 10% or more of their current business income, they must lodge a TPAR. Their TPAR will report payments they made to Immediate Food.

Example: takeaway restaurant charges for some deliveries

Wai's Pizza is a business with an ABN that operates a dine in and takeaway pizza restaurant. Wai's Pizza also offers a delivery service for customers' orders.

For orders under $50, Wai's Pizza charges $10 for deliveries. For orders over $50, delivery is free.

Wai's Pizza uses contractors to deliver pizza to customers.

When calculating total payments for courier services, Wai's Pizza does not include delivered orders over $50. This is because Wai's Pizza did not receive any delivery fees from these orders.

Wai's Pizza traded for the full financial year. Therefore, they can use their current business income to work out if they need to lodge a TPAR.

For example:

- current business income = $100,000
- total payments for courier services = $5,000 (delivery fees for orders less than $50).

To work out if they need to lodge a TPAR, Wai's Pizza calculates:

$$\text{$5,000 (payments for courier services)} \div \text{$100,000 (current business income)} \times 100 \text{ (to get the percentage)} = 5\%$$

The $5,000 received in delivery fees is 5% of their total business income for the financial year. Therefore, Wai's Pizza does not lodge a TPAR.

Examples of courier services

Courier services are when items or goods are collected from or delivered to any place in Australia using the following methods:

- bicycle or other non-powered means of transport
- drones
- on foot
- vehicles, including:
 - car
 - motorcycle
 - motorised scooter

- station wagon
- truck
- ute
- van.

Courier services are usually door-to-door services. These services are used for specialty deliveries or for small parcels or packages.

Goods transported using courier services mostly include parcels, packages, letters and food.

If you sell goods and give the option of a delivery service, you are supplying a courier service.

Courier services don't include:

- delivering goods your business provides, (for example, if delivery is the only way your customers can receive the goods)
- passenger transport services, (for example, buses and taxis)
- freight transport from one location to another, this includes transporting large quantities of items, goods or commodities by:
 - air
 - rail
 - road, this is usually by heavy vehicle trucks or larger vehicles
 - sea.

Example: online florist hires a contractor to deliver flowers to customers

Daisy Bouquet is an online florist without a physical shopfront. Daisy Bouquet has an ABN.

Customers buy flowers from Daisy Bouquet's website. The flowers are delivered by courier. There is no option for the customer to collect the flowers themselves.

The courier drivers are contractors hired by Daisy Bouquet.

Daisy Bouquet charges customers a purchase and delivery fee. This is because customers can only receive the flowers they purchase by delivery.

Therefore, Daisy Bouquet is not supplying a courier service when it sells flowers to customers. This is even though it charges customers a fee for delivery.

Daisy Bouquet doesn't lodge a TPAR.

Information technology services

When a business providing IT services must lodge a Taxable payments annual report to report payments to contractors.

Last updated 23 April 2024

When your business provides IT and other services

You must lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) if all conditions are met:

- your business provides information technology (IT) services to other people or businesses
- you paid contractors or subcontractors to provide these IT services on behalf of your business
- you have an Australian business number (ABN).

Payments made to employees are not reported in your TPAR.

Each year, you must:

- review if you need to lodge a TPAR

- report these payments to us on your TPAR by 28 August.

You should:

- work out how much of your business income came from IT services
- add up the money your business was paid for providing IT services for the financial year. A financial year is the 12 months from 1 July to 30 June
- include payments for services provided by both employees and contractors or subcontractors
- work out the total amount of your business income for the year.

If the total payments, you receive for IT services are:

You can also choose to lodge a TPAR even if you are:

- under the 10% threshold
- unsure if you will be under the threshold.

See the steps on how to Work out if you need to lodge

Example: IT company using both employees and contractors

Goodtime Software has an ABN and develops accounting software for clients.

An accounting firm uses Goodtime to write an accounting software suite tailored to the needs of the firm.

Goodtime develops software for the accounting firm. It also provides ongoing software patches to fix bugs.

The software is not produced for general sale or distribution.

Goodtime is providing an IT service because:

- the software was developed for the client for which Goodtime was contracted
- the writing of software patches for this accounting software is considered an IT service. This is because the patch was written to address issues in the accounting software specifically developed for the client.

Goodtime has:

- employees to develop the accounting software
- contractors to write patches.

At the end of the financial year, the total payments Goodtime received for IT services is 68% of its gross business income. Contractors made up 30% of these payments.

Goodtime needs to report the payments made to its contractors on a TPAR. This is because the contractors are providing an IT service on behalf of Goodtime.

Goodtime doesn't report the payments made to its employees on a TPAR. Instead, they report these payments in Single Touch Payroll (STP).

Engaging overseas contractors

If you are providing a relevant IT service and engaging a contractor to provide that service on your behalf, the payment to that contractor is reported in the TPAR.

Contractors can be located outside of Australia and may not have an ABN. There is no exclusion based on the location or tax residency of the payee.

If an ABN is not provided, you may need to withhold payment under the pay as you go (PAYG) withholding arrangements.

Examples of IT services

IT services can be completed at a work site or online.

Some examples of IT services include:

- computer facilities management
- computer hardware consulting
- computer network systems design and integration
- computer programming
- computer software consulting
- customised software development
- internet and web design consulting
- IT consulting
- software installation
- software simulation and testing
- systems analysis
- technical support.

Examples of activities that are not IT services include:

- using IT hardware or software in your business to provide a service (other than an IT service)
 - for example, you would not be providing an IT service if your business uses software to operate an accounting, project management or word processing business
- mass producing computer software. For example, reproduction of recorded media
- the leasing or hiring out of computers or other data processing equipment
- providing data processing services or computer data storage and retrieval services
- installing computer cables.

Example: company designing local area networks for large businesses

Whiz Networking has an ABN and provides the following services to its clients:

- design, development, installation and testing of local area networks and intranets
- ongoing technical support.

Whiz Networking uses contractors to:

- install and test the network hardware
- develop, install and test the intranet
- provide ongoing technical support.

The services Whiz Networking provides to its clients makes up 40% of its business income. It must report in a TPAR the payments made to contractors for these IT services.

When your business provides road freight and other services

You must lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) if all conditions are met:

- your business provides road freight services to other people or businesses
- you paid contractors or subcontractors to provide these road freight services on behalf of your business
- you have an Australian business number (ABN).

Payments made to employees are not reported in your TPAR.

Each year, you must:

- review if you need to lodge a TPAR
- report these payments to us on your TPAR by 28 August.

If road freight services are only part of what your business provides, you may need to fill out a TPAR.

You should:

- work out how much of your business income came from road freight services
- add up the money your business was paid for providing road freight services for the financial year, a financial year is the 12 months from 1 July to 30 June
- include payments for services provided by both employees and contractors or subcontractors
- work out the total amount of your business income for the year.

If an arrangement with your customer involves providing both goods and road freight services, you need to determine if the road freight services are either:

- composite supply of delivering the goods: the delivery is essential, ancillary or incidental to the supply of the goods, the delivery involved is not a 'road freight service'
- mixed supply of road freight services and goods: the delivery part of the service is a large cost or could be made as a separate supply, the delivery part is a 'road freight service.'

If the total payments, you receive for road freight services are:

- 10% or more of your gross business income: you must lodge a TPAR
- less than 10% of your gross business income: you don't lodge a TPAR.

From 1 July 2019, if your business provides road freight and courier services, combine the payments you receive for both services. Do this when you work out if you need to lodge a TPAR.

You can also choose to lodge a TPAR even if you are:

- under the 10% threshold (see examples below)

- unsure if you will be under the threshold.

See the steps on how to Work out if you need to lodge a TPAR

Example: business providing courier and road freight services

Transport Traders is a business that:

- has an ABN
- supplies both road freight and courier services.

To transport bulk goods and deliver parcels for clients, Transport Traders uses contractors that provide their own vehicles. Contractors are used in both the road freight and courier parts of its business.

In the financial year, Transport Traders works out that:

- the current business income for Transport Traders is $7 million
- amounts received for road freight services is $6.4 million
- amounts received for courier services is $600,000.

Transport Traders must add together the total amounts received for road freight and courier services. This is because road freight and courier service are counted as one category for TPAR reporting.

The total payments Transport Traders received for road freight and courier services is 100% of their current business income for the financial year.

Transport Traders must report in a TPAR the payments made to contractors that provided these services on its behalf.

Examples of road freight services

Road freight services can include:

- furniture removal
- log haulage

- road freight forwarding
- road vehicle towing services
- transportation of goods by road
- truck hire with a driver.

'Transportation of freight by road' includes the transport of:

- goods:
 - in a raw or natural state
 - in a wholly or partly manufactured state
 - solid, liquid or gaseous in nature
- livestock
- material
- merchandise
- wares.

Typically, goods will be sent by road freight where the goods are transported in bulk using large vehicles.

Road freight services don't include:

- passenger transport services such as buses and taxis
- courier services: however, from 1 July 2018, these services must be reported in a TPAR
- operating road freight terminals
- providing crating and packing for road freight transport
- leasing or hiring trucks without drivers.

Example: business providing road freight services

Longhaul is a business that has an ABN. It has an agreement to transport a consignment of bulk groceries to a supermarket in a remote town.

There is only one main road to this town. Heavy vehicles cannot travel on the road.

Longhaul divides the consignment into smaller loads. To transport groceries to the supermarket, Longhaul uses contract drivers. These contractor drivers use vans to travel to the remote town and transport the groceries.

Longhaul is considered to be supplying a road freight service, not a courier service. This is because the agreement is to transport a bulk quantity of groceries from one location to another. The form of transport does not change the service provided.

Longhaul is operational for the full financial year. Its total payments for road freight services is 20% of its total business income. Longhaul must report in a TPAR the payments made to the contract drivers.

Example: freight forwarding services

Rapport Freight has an ABN and provides freight forwarding services.

Rapport Freight sometimes uses contractors to provide freight forwarding services on Rapport Freight's behalf. These contractors supply their own vehicles.

Rapport Freight is engaged to transport a large consignment of new cars for a car company. The cars arrive at a port in Fremantle. Rapport Freight uses its contractors to transport these cars by road to the car company's warehouse in Melbourne.

Rapport Freight's transportation of the consignment of cars is by road. The consignment of cars is a road freight service.

Rapport Freight has been operating for the full financial year.

At the end of the financial year, the total payments Rapport Freight received for road freight services is more than 10% of its total business income.

Rapport Freight must report in a TPAR the payments it makes to contractors for these services.

Security, investigation or surveillance services

When a business providing security, investigation or surveillance services must lodge a TPAR for contractor payments.

When your business provides security, investigation, surveillance and other services

You must lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) if:

- your business provides security, investigation or surveillance services to other people or businesses

- you have an Australian business number (ABN).

You can also choose to lodge a TPAR even if you are:

- under the 10% threshold
- unsure if you will be under the threshold.

See the steps on how to Work out if you need to lodge

Example: business providing alarms, monitoring and response services

Response Now has an ABN and provides monitoring and response services.

These services include:

- the sale and installation of security alarms and cameras
- alarm monitoring
- on-call rapid response teams for crowd control situations.

Response Now identifies the alarm monitoring and crowd control services they provide are a security, investigation and surveillance service. This is because the services they provide involve watching and protecting individuals and property.

Response Now uses contractors to complete these services. These services also make up 20% of Response Now's total business income.

Response Now must lodge a TPAR. On their TPAR, they report payments made to contractors for alarm monitoring and crowd control services.

Response Now doesn't need to report payments made to contractors that sell or install security alarms and cameras on their behalf. This is because these services are not reportable.

Example of security, investigation or surveillance services

Security services

Security services include patrolling, protecting, screening, watching or guarding any people, premises or property by any means.

Investigation services

Investigation services include searching inquiries by any means into one or more specific individuals or matters. The purpose of these inquiries is to decide on the facts or gather evidence.

Investigation services:

- relate specifically to security and surveillance
- involve more than information gathering
- don't include routine record or police checks, or telemarketers conducting surveys.

Surveillance services

Surveillance services include watching or observing an area or location and monitoring security systems. These services may overlap with security services.

Examples of security, investigation or surveillance activities include:

- alarm monitoring and response

- armoured car service
- body guarding or close personal protection
- burglary protection
- crowd, event or venue control
- detective agency service
- lock smithing
- night watch service
- operating a security control room or monitoring centre
- operating security screening equipment, (for example, prohibited item detectors, x-ray scanners and explosive trace detection)
- security guard service.

Security, investigation or surveillance services don't include:

- academic or market research
- manufacture or retail of security, investigative or surveillance devices, (for example, security alarms, cameras or voice recorders)
- manufacture, retail, installation, maintenance or repair of fire alarm systems
- police services
- providing aerial surveying or mapping services
- providing key cutting or duplication services
- surveillance of country borders.

Lodging your TPAR

To meet your reporting obligations, lodge using the method that works for your situation.

If you don't need to lodge, see TPAR Non-lodgment advice.

To update or correct the payee (contractor) details, see Amend a lodged TPAR.

Sole traders and businesses

Use business software if:

- it is SBR-enabled software
- your business can create a TPAR data file to the required Taxable payments annual reporting specification  (lodge through Online services for business using the file transfer function).

If you don't have business software, use one of the following:

- Online services for business
 - to use this service, you need an ABN  and to set up your Digital ID and Relationship Authorisation Manager \(RAM\)
 - select Lodgments then Taxable payments annual reporting
 - this service allows you to:
 - save and resume your draft TPAR before lodging
 - confirm previous lodgment dates and access receipt IDs in the History section
- Online services for individuals and sole traders
 - select Tax, Lodgments and then Taxable payments annual report
 - this service allows you to:
 - save and resume your draft TPAR before lodging
 - confirm previous lodgment dates and access receipt IDs in the History section
- your registered tax or Business activity statements (BAS) agent.

Tax professionals

Tax and BAS agents can lodge a TPAR for clients using business software if:

- it is SBR-enabled software
- your business can create a TPAR data file to the required Taxable payments annual reporting specification , (lodge through Online services for business using the file transfer function).

If you don't have business software, use Online services for agents .

Online services for agents allows you to:

- view a client's outstanding TPARs in the For action screen or under Lodgments
- lodge TPARs for your clients through the online form
- save and resume draft TPARs for your clients before lodging
- confirm previous lodgment dates and access receipts in the History section.

Government entities

Use business software if:

- it is SBR-enabled software
- your business can create a TPAR data file to the required Taxable payments annual reporting specification , (lodge through Online services for business using the file transfer function).

If you don't have business software, use Online services for business:

- to use this service, you need an ABN  and to set up your Digital ID and Relationship Authorisation Manager \(RAM\)
- select Lodgments then Taxable payments annual report.

TPAR contractor details to report

Contractor information must be provided when completing a Taxable payment annual report (TPAR).

Last updated 23 April 2024

Contractor details we need

Businesses and government entities must provide contractor (payee) details when completing a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR). You can also give these details to contractors.

For each contractor you pay, you must include the following details in your TPAR:

- Australian business number (ABN), if known
 - if a contractor's ABN changed during the year, include each ABN for that contractor
- name (business name or individual's name)

- address
- total amounts for the financial year of the
 - gross amount paid, including goods and services tax (GST) and any tax withheld
 - total GST you paid them
 - total tax withheld where an ABN was not quoted.

If you are a government entity, you must report

- if a Statement by a supplier was provided
- details of any grants paid to people or organisations that have an ABN, including the
 - date the grant was paid
 - name of the grant or grant program.

To tell us when a grant is listed under Division 59 of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1997 as non-assessable non-exempt \(NANE\) income – answer 'yes' to this question in the TPAR.

We may ask for extra information about your contractors, including their:

- phone number
- email address
- bank account details (if they are paid by electronic bank transfer).

Checking contractor ABN details

When you receive an invoice:

- check that the ABN on the invoice matches the ABN on your record for that contractor
- ensure you create a new contractor record, if necessary.

Check your contractor's details (including ABN, name and GST registration) are correct by using ABN Lookup  or the ATO app.

Payee information statement

You don't need to provide contractors with any details of the information you have reported to us on a TPAR.

If you choose to provide information to a contractor, you can use the Payee information statement \(PDF 116KB\)

Complete it by:

- filling in the form online and saving it to your device
- printing the form and filling it in by hand.

The amounts reported on the Payee information statement are the total amounts you have reported to us. The amounts are in whole dollars and don't include cents.

If you create a new statement to correct one that was previously given to a contractor, write 'amendment' on the top of the new form.

The statement is for your and your contractor's records only. Don't send this to us.

TPAR Non-lodgment advice

If you don't need to lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR), you can submit a Non-lodgment advice form.

Last updated 23 April 2024

Access the Non-lodgment advice form through ATO online services.

This form:

- allows you to notify multiple years on the same form
- allows you to advise when you do not need to lodge in the future
- allows you to give a reason for not lodging
- validates information entered
- provides a reference number for confirmation

- appears in the lodgment history tab.

Submit a TPAR Non-lodgment advice form

Before you submit a TPAR Non-lodgment advice form, work out if you must lodge a TPAR.

Submitting a TPAR Non-lodgment advice form is based on your situation:

- Businesses, including sole traders
- Tax professionals
- Government entities

Businesses, including sole traders

Submit a TPAR Non-lodgment advice form through either:

TPAR paper lodgments

TPAR paper lodgments are no longer accepted after 28 August 2025. For more information on online lodgment see Lodge your TPAR.

Amend amounts reported

You can amend a lodged Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) form and update the payee (contractors) amounts and details reported. The lodged amendment may take up to 28 days to process.

Amend a lodged TPAR when the amounts (excluding details) reported for payees are incorrect.

Incorrectly reported amounts include:

- total goods and services tax (GST)
- gross amount paid
- total tax withheld where the Australian business number (ABN) was not quoted.

Include all the details for each payee that you are amending. The details must be exactly as they appeared in your original lodgment, except the amended amounts for the payee.

Correct payee details

If your original TPAR included any incorrect details for a payee (excluding amounts), you don't need to submit an amended report.

Instead, correct this information by sending us the details online.

The following details can be corrected:

- ABN
- name of the payer or payee
- grant name (government entities only)
- incorrect financial year.

Send us:

- the correct information, including
 - the payee or payer details (or both) that were reported and need to be corrected
 - the payee or payer details (or both) as they should have been reported
 - the correct grant name
- your ABN
- your name
- your contact details: email address or phone number (we may need to contact you)
- the financial year of the TPAR (for example, 2018 TPAR)
- the reason for the change or an explanation of how you made the mistake.

If you're a tax professional, send the information to us by Practice mail using Online services for agents.

Correct payee details online

Use Online services for business to send us the correct payee details online.

You can:

1. Sign in to Online services for business.
2. Select Communication from the top menu then Secure mail.
3. Select New and then from the Topic drop-down list, select Debt and lodgment.
4. Select Taxable payments annual report from the Subject menu.

5. Attach any files and provide the correct information.
6. Complete the declaration and then Send.

Add new payees

To add a new payee, you need to lodge another TPAR, including:

- all your information as the payer
- the information for the new payee or payees.

Lodge an amended TPAR form

If your report was lodged online using business software, generate an amended report using your software.

If your report wasn't lodged using business software, lodge an amended TPAR form online.

Registered tax and business activity agent (BAS) agents can lodge TPAR amendments for their clients through Online services for agents.

Lodge your amendment online

The TPAR online form is available through ATO online services for individuals and sole traders (accessed through myGov).

It's also available in Online services for business.

To lodge an amendment in ATO Online services for individuals, you:

1. Select Tax then Lodgments from the top menu.
2. Select Taxable payments annual report.
3. Select the History tab.
4. Select Lodge/Amend.
5. Select the financial year using the drop-down menu.
6. At Payee details select Add.
7. Select Payee amendment.
8. Provide all the payee information.
9. Click Save and continue.

10. Add any other payees where you need to amend information.
11. Once you have provided accurate information, complete the declaration then Submit.

To lodge an amendment in Online service for business, you:

1. Select Lodgments then Taxable payments annual report.
2. Select the History tab.

Taxable payments reporting and contractors

Lodge a Taxable payments annual report (TPAR) to report payments made to contractors for providing certain services.

Last updated 27 May 2026

Reporting payments for contractors

As part of the Taxable payment reporting system (TPRS), many businesses lodge a Taxable payments annual report \(TPAR\) to report payments made to contractors for providing the following services:

- building and construction
- cleaning
- courier
- information technology \(IT\)
- road freight
- security, investigation or surveillance

If you work as a contractor providing any of these services, remember to include all your income on your tax return.

To help you get it right, we can include information reported to us about contractor payments to you in our:

- pre-filling service – if you're a sole trader, you or your registered tax agent may use our pre-filling service to easily include these payments in your tax return
- reported transactions in ATO online platforms – these records give you transparency about the data that has been provided to us about your business transactions.

Why we collect this information

Collecting information about contractor payments in the TPAR helps us:

- identify contractors who do not meet their tax obligations so we can let them know and help them correctly report their income
- make sure businesses aren't disadvantaged by competitors who don't declare all their income.

What's new for Tax Time 2026 – pre-fill for individuals in business

If you work as a contractor providing TPRS services, amounts reported to the ATO through TPAR will now be pre-filled in your tax return. Pre-fill securely imports verified data into your return and reduces manual entry, helping you get things right the first time.

Most TPAR data will only be available after 28 August each year. Lodging in July or early August means this information may not appear yet. This could lead to omissions, the need for amendments, and repayment of refunds later. Lodging after 28 August gives you the best experience and reduces risk of errors.

You can check, update and confirm any pre-filled information before you lodge. If you change a pre-filled amount, you will be asked to select a short reason code explaining why.

For more information, see:

- pre-fill availability
- what you need to report in your income tax return

Super guarantee

Check key due dates for employers who need to pay super guarantee.

Last updated 21 April 2026

Employers need to make super guarantee contributions to an employee's super fund and ensure that they reach the fund by the due date.

With the introduction of Payday Super from 1 July 2026, employers must pay super guarantee each payday. The contributions must reach the employee's super fund within 7 business days of payday (unless longer applies).

For quarterly periods ending on or before 30 June 2026, employers need to make sure super guarantee contributions reach an employee's super fund by the following due dates:

- Quarter 3 (1 January – 31 March 2026) – due 28 April 2026
 - Super guarantee contributions need to reach your employee's super fund by this date – it's important that you leave enough time for your super payments to reach and be processed by your employee's super fund, especially if you're using a clearing house.
 - If you don't pay minimum super guarantee contributions for quarter 3 by this date, you must lodge a Superannuation guarantee charge statement – quarterly and pay the super guarantee charge to us by 28 May 2026 to avoid additional penalties.
 - For payments received before 30 June 2026, you can choose to offset quarterly contributions you've paid late to a fund for each employee against the super guarantee charge for quarter 3 or earlier.
- Quarter 4 (1 April – 30 June 2026) – due 28 July 2026
 - If you don't pay minimum super guarantee contributions for quarter 4 by this date, you must lodge a Superannuation guarantee charge statement – quarterly and pay the super guarantee charge to us by 28 August 2026 to avoid additional penalties.
 - You can't offset contributions you've paid late for this quarter.

The quarterly super guarantee charge is more than the super guarantee contributions you would have otherwise paid to the employee's fund and is not tax deductible. For more information see Missed and late super guarantee payments.

You can claim a tax deduction for an amount of super guarantee charge that you pay under Payday Super.
