A New Tax System (Goods and Services Tax) Waiver of Tax Invoice Requirement (Creditable Acquisition by a Lessee Following a Sale of a Reversion in Commercial Premises) Legislative Instrument (No. 1) 2012

Explanatory Statement

General outline of this instrument

1. This legislative instrument is made under subsection 29-10(3) of the A New Tax System (Goods and Services Tax) Act 1999 (GST Act).
2. This instrument waives the requirement for a lessee or sub-lessee (recipient) of commercial premises to hold a tax invoice in certain circumstances for an input tax credit to be attributable to a tax period for a creditable acquisition of the premises.
3. This instrument is a legislative instrument for the purposes of the Legislative Instruments Act 2003.
4. All legislative references in this explanatory statement are to provisions in the GST Act unless otherwise specified.

Commencement and application of this instrument

5. This instrument commences on 1 July 2010 and applies to creditable acquisitions made by a recipient of commercial premises following the sale of the reversion in those premises to the extent that the input tax credits for creditable acquisitions are attributable to tax periods commencing on or after 1 July 2010. The instrument applies to both a lessee or a sub-lessee of commercial premises as the term 'reversion' has been defined to include both the freehold interest sold subject to a lease and a leasehold estate assigned subject to a sub-lease.

6. The retrospective application of this instrument does not have an adverse effect on the rights or liabilities of any person other than the Commonwealth.¹ The effect of the instrument is to the advantage of affected parties. It waives the requirement for a recipient making a creditable acquisition of commercial premises by way of lease to hold a tax invoice before an input tax credit is attributable to a tax period when the recipient holds documents that meet the information requirements prescribed in this instrument.

7. These prescribed information requirements are not substantively different to the requirements under which documents held by the recipient were treated as tax invoices in Decision Impact Statement (DIS) for *South Steyne Hotel Pty Ltd & Ors v Commissioner of Taxation*² (NSD 97/2009) (ruling status of the administrative treatment withdrawn on 23 February 2012). This means that suppliers and recipients do not have to change their practices, software or accounting systems to comply with this instrument.

8. If this instrument did not apply retrospectively, a recipient could be liable to an administrative penalty and the imposition of the General Interest Charge in respect of input tax credits attributed to a tax period in which the recipient held the original lease and a document from the current owner of the commercial premises after the withdrawal of the ruling status of the administrative treatment in the DIS. This is because such documents held by the recipient at the time of lodging its GST return³ would not meet the information requirements for a tax invoice,⁴ or be treated as a tax invoice,⁵ and the input tax credit would therefore be incorrectly attributed to a tax period.

What is this instrument about?

9. This instrument explains that an input tax credit for a creditable acquisition is attributable to a tax period for an acquisition by a lessee or sub-lessee of commercial premises when they or their agent hold documents other than a tax invoice following the sale of the reversionary interest in those premises. This instrument also sets out the particular information that should be included in these documents for the input tax credit to be attributed to that tax period.

What is the effect of this instrument?

10. This instrument relieves a recipient from the requirement to hold a tax invoice before an input tax credit for a creditable acquisition is attributable to a tax period when the recipient holds documents that meet the requirements of this instrument.

11. This instrument is intended to effect the same general treatment as when the Commissioner had exercised the discretion to treat documents as a tax invoice in the situations set out in the DIS for *South Steyne Hotel Pty Ltd & Ors v Commissioner of Taxation*⁶ (NSD 97/2009). Although the administrative treatment adopted in that DIS continued to be a binding public ruling for some time after 1 July 2010, for simplicity and to avoid doubt for taxpayers, this instrument will apply to amounts attributed to tax periods commencing on or after that date.

¹ Subsection 12(2) of the Legislative Instruments Act 2003 provides that a retrospective legislative instrument (or provision of that instrument) will be of no effect if it applies to adversely affect the rights or liabilities of any person other than the Commonwealth.

³ The GST return forms part of the Activity Statement.

⁴ Subsection 29-10(3) provides that a recipient must hold a tax invoice for an input tax credit for a creditable acquisition to be attributable to a particular tax period.

⁵ Unless, on a recipient's request, the Commissioner exercised the discretion under subsection 29-70(1B) to treat a document as a tax invoice.

12. Compliance cost impact: An assessment of the compliance cost impact indicates that the impact will be minimal for both the implementation and on-going compliance costs. The instrument is routine in nature.

Background

13. Generally, when a recipient makes a creditable acquisition, an input tax credit for the acquisition is not attributable to a tax period until they hold a tax invoice. A tax invoice is a document that meets the requirements of subsection 29-70(1).

14. In some cases, the requirement for the recipient to hold a document that meets the requirements of subsection 29-70(1) may impose a disproportionate burden on a supplier or a recipient, particularly if the document has most of the required features of a tax invoice.

15. The DIS outlined circumstances under which certain documents were treated as tax invoices because the Commissioner exercised the discretion under former subsection 29-70(1). The Commissioner's discretion to treat a document as a tax invoice is now contained in subsection 29-70(1B).

16. The Commissioner's discretion under subsection 29-70(1B) is administrative, and can only be exercised on a case by case basis. The binding statements in the DIS may have confined or restrained the Commissioner's discretion and in light of this it is therefore not appropriate to deal with this matter in a public ruling.

17. To avoid imposing an administrative burden on suppliers and recipients who relied on the DIS the Commissioner has chosen to make a determination under subsection 29-10(3) to waive the requirement to hold a tax invoice for a recipient of commercial premises in the circumstances described.

Explanation

18. The Full Federal Court in *Westley Nominees Pty Ltd v Coles Supermarkets Australia Pty Ltd*⁷ held that the purchaser of a reversion in commercial premises (the current owner in the context of this instrument) makes a supply to the lessee under paragraph 9-10(2)(g) by way of entering into an obligation to honour the terms of the lease. Where the requirements of section 9-5 are satisfied, this supply is a taxable supply.⁸

19. A lease agreement for the commercial premises or other document issued by the owner that originally granted the lease or sub-lease can be a tax invoice if it satisfies the requirements of subsection 29-70(1).⁹ However, such documents cannot be a tax invoice for the period of the lease following the sale of the reversion in the commercial premises. This is because the documents would not have been issued by the current owner of the commercial premises¹⁰ and would not contain the identity and ABN of the current owner.¹¹

20. Further, following the sale of the reversion, a new lease agreement does not need to be entered into between the current owner and the recipient. The previously existing lease or sub-lease agreement may continue in operation.

21. Therefore, following the sale of the reversion, the recipient might not have a document that complies with the tax invoice requirements.

⁸ See GSTD 2012/2 for the Commissioner's views on the GST consequences following the sale of commercial premises that are subject to a lease.

⁹ See paragraphs 48 to 50 of Goods and Services Tax Ruling GSTR 2000/35 Division 156 – supplies and acquisitions made on a progressive or periodic basis.

¹⁰ Paragraph 29-70(1)(a).

¹¹ Subparagraph 29-70(1)(c)(i).

22. This legislative instrument is intended to save recipients in these circumstances from the requirement to hold a tax invoice before an input tax credit is attributable to a tax period if they or their agent hold the following documents:

- (a) a document that was issued by the current owner of the commercial premises¹² from which the following can be clearly ascertained:
 - (i) the current owner's identity and ABN;
 - (ii) the address of the premises; and
 - (iii) the consideration or part of the consideration payable for the lease for which there is an entitlement to an input tax credit; and
- (b) a document that was issued by the owner or sub-lessor who originally granted the lease or sub-lease of the commercial premises that meets the requirements of subsection 29-70(1) as they applied to that owner.

23. The recipient must hold the above documents at the time they submit to the Commissioner a GST return for the tax period in which the input tax credit for the acquisition has been attributed.

Consultation

24. Section 18 of the Legislative Instruments Act 2003 specifically provides for circumstances where consultation may not be necessary or appropriate. One of those circumstances is where the instrument is considered minor or machinery in nature, and does not substantially change the law.

25. Although the instrument was considered minor or machinery in nature, and does not substantially change the law, consultation was carried out to the following extent:

- feedback was invited from the National Tax Liaison Group GST Subcommittee; and
- comment was invited from members of the community through the publication of a consultation draft of this instrument and explanatory statement.

Statement of Compatibility with Human Rights

Prepared in accordance with Part 3 of the Human Rights (Parliamentary Scrutiny) Act 2011.

A New Tax System (Goods and Services Tax) Waiver of Tax Invoice Requirement (Creditable Acquisition for a Lessee Following a Sale of a Reversion in Commercial Premises) Legislative Instrument (No. 1) 2012

26. This instrument is compatible with the human rights and freedoms recognised or declared in the international instruments listed in section 3 of the Human Rights (Parliamentary Scrutiny) Act 2011.

¹² When a leasehold estate is assigned subject to a sub-lease of commercial premises, the assignee will become the sub-lessor. In these circumstances, for the purposes of this instrument, the 'current owner of the commercial premises' under the sub-lease is the assignee. Accordingly, the sub-lessee will need to hold a document issued by the sub-lessor from which the particular information listed at subclause 5(1) may be clearly ascertained. This includes the sub-lessor's identity and ABN.

Overview

27. This instrument waives the requirement for a lessee or sub-lessee of commercial premises to hold a tax invoice before an input tax credit is attributable to a tax period for a creditable acquisition of the premises when they hold documents that meet the requirements of this instrument.

Human rights implications

28. On an assessment of the compatibility of this instrument with the seven core international human rights treaties to which Australia is a party, this instrument has been determined not to engage any of the applicable rights or freedoms.

Conclusion

29. This instrument is compatible with human rights as it does not raise any human rights issues.
