

The Administrative Review Tribunal (ART) was established by the Administrative Review Tribunal Act 2024 and commenced operations on 14 October 2024, replacing the Administrative Appeals Tribunal (AAT).

In this Practice Statement, a reference to a right to seek review of a reviewable objection decision or an extension of time refusal decision in the AAT should instead be read as a reference to a review in the ART.

This Practice Statement outlines the policy to be applied to the disclosure of protected information and protected documents collected by the Registrar of the Australian Business Register.

Note: The principles in this Practice Statement equally apply to the recording of protected information.

This Practice Statement is an internal ATO document and an instruction to ATO staff.

1. What this Practice Statement is about

This Practice Statement outlines the Registrar's policy on when a disclosure of protected information and protected documents collected by the Registrar of the Australian Business Register (ABR) can be made and to whom.

2. What are protected documents

'Protected document'¹ means any document made or given under, or for the purposes of, the A New Tax System (Australian Business Number) Act 1999 (ABN Act). For example, a completed application for registration in the ABR is a protected document.

All legislative references in this Practice Statement are to the ABN Act, unless otherwise indicated.

3. What is protected information

'Protected information'² in the ABR is information that meets all the following conditions:

- It relates to the affairs of a person other than the entrusted person.³
- It was obtained by the entrusted person, or by another person, in the course of official employment.
- It was disclosed or obtained under, or in relation to, the ABN Act.

Protected information includes details that the Registrar must enter in the ABR when an entity is registered. These details are listed in the Attachment to this Practice Statement.

Protected information also includes information that is necessary or incidental to the Registrar carrying out the functions under the ABN Act. For example, the Registrar may request an entity to provide information that is relevant to the entity's entitlement to be registered.

4. What information is not protected

Public whole-of-government information

The Registrar can collect additional details about an entity where the details are publicly available and are considered necessary to facilitate service delivery functions for whole-of-government purposes.

As this information is not collected for a purpose of the ABN Act, it is not protected information and therefore not subject to the secrecy provisions in the ABN Act.

Aggregate information

The Registrar can consolidate information recorded in the ABR to produce aggregated data sets where the identity of entities and associates of those entities can no longer be ascertained because details such as the name and address have been removed or modified. Aggregated data sets cannot contain details where the identity of any entity can be estimated or derived.

² 'Protected information' is defined in section 41.

³ A person who receives protected information or protected documents in the course of official employment is referred to as an 'entrusted person'.

Aggregated information is not protected information and therefore not subject to the secrecy provisions in the ABN Act.

5. What are the Registrar's obligations in relation to protected documents and protected information

The Registrar must protect the confidentiality of protected documents and protected information. They cannot be disclosed, unless the disclosure is permitted by the secrecy provisions in the ABN Act.⁴

6. What is disclosure of information

Disclosure is the act of the Registrar divulging or communicating information and documents that are collected about an entity to other parties outside of the ATO. By doing so, the Registrar loses effective control of the information.

7. When can the Registrar disclose protected information

The Registrar has the discretion to disclose protected information where the disclosure:

- is for the purposes of the ABN Act
- happens in the course of the Registrar's official employment
- is to other government agencies that are eligible to receive it
- is to persons carrying out functions under a taxation law
- is to the Administrative Appeals Tribunal.

Disclosure is for the purposes of the ABN Act

The ABN Act gives the Registrar the discretion to disclose certain protected information about an entity publicly. These details are listed in the Attachment to this Practice Statement.

The Registrar makes these details publicly available⁵ through:

- ABN Lookup at business.gov.au

- Super Fund Lookup at superfundlookup.gov.au (in relation to superannuation entities).

The Registrar also makes these details available via bulk download through:

- ABN Lookup web services at business.gov.au⁶
- requests of datasets at data.gov.au⁷

Any details that the Registrar makes publicly available lose their character of confidentiality and therefore are no longer protected by the secrecy provisions in the ABN Act.

Disclosure happens in the course of official employment

The Registrar can disclose protected information where the disclosure happens in the course of the performance of the duties of the Registrar's official employment. For example, the Registrar can disclose protected information about an entity to an individual that has been nominated by that entity as their authorised representative.

Disclosure is to government agencies

The Registrar can disclose protected information to:

- an Agency Head for the purpose of carrying out functions of the Agency⁸
- the accountable authority of a non-corporate Commonwealth entity within the meaning of the Public Governance, Performance and Accountability Act 2013 for the purpose of carrying out functions conferred on the entity by a law of the Commonwealth
- the head of a Department of State of a state or territory for the purposes of carrying out functions of the Department
- the head of a body established for a public purpose by or under a law of a state or territory for the purpose of carrying out functions conferred on the body by a law of the state or territory.

⁴ Section 30 provides for the protection of confidentiality of information.

⁵ The Registrar may make publicly available limited details listed in subsection 26(3) in relation to an entity.

⁶ The ABN Lookup web services allow an organisation to integrate ABN Lookup validation and data into their own applications. Web services can be used to pre-fill forms and keeping ABN details stored in that organisation's database up to date.

⁷ data.gov.au provides a central catalogue of government public datasets.

⁸ 'Agency Head' is defined in section 7 of the Public Service Act 1999 to mean:

- (a) the Secretary of a Department; or
- (b) the Head of an Executive Agency; or
- (c) the Head of a Statutory Agency.

The Registrar generally discloses protected information to government agencies where:

- a sufficient nexus exists between the use of the protected information and the furtherance of the function of the government entity, and
- the government entity agrees to be party to a Terms and Conditions agreement with the Registrar.⁹

Disclosure is to persons carrying out functions under a taxation law

The Registrar may disclose protected information to another person for the purpose of carrying out functions under a taxation law.¹⁰

Disclosure is to the Administrative Appeals Tribunal

The Registrar may disclose protected information to the Administrative Appeals Tribunal in connection with proceedings under a taxation law.¹¹

8. Are there any restrictions on disclosure of protected information

Disclosure to Ministers and other elected members

Protected information cannot be disclosed to a Commonwealth, State or Territory Minister or an elected member of a body established under a law of a State or Territory.¹²

Disclosure to a court

An entrusted person is not required to produce a protected document or disclose protected information to a court except where it is necessary for the purpose of giving effect to a taxation law.¹³

Disclosure to a government body with a commercial arm

While the Registrar may be able to disclose protected information to a government body, the Registrar may choose not to, as the government body may receive a commercial advantage from accessing the ABR information.

9. Are there other considerations for the Registrar

When making a decision about the disclosure of protected information, the Registrar must consider other Commonwealth laws as well as the ABN Act.

Taxation laws

Information that is protected for ABN Act purposes is also protected by the secrecy provisions contained in Division 355 to Schedule 1 of the Taxation Administration Act 1953 (TAA).

These secrecy provisions allow the Commissioner to disclose protected information to various third parties for very specific purposes.

There may be instances where the disclosure of ABR protected information cannot be made under the ABN Act but may be permissible under the TAA secrecy provisions. For example, a taskforce may request information that relates to the ABN Act. As the taskforce would not be eligible to receive the information from the Registrar under the ABN Act, the Commissioner would be able to disclose ABR protected information to the taskforce under the TAA secrecy provisions, as this disclosure is permissible.

Privacy laws

Any disclosure of information about individuals is also subject to the Privacy Act 1988 (Privacy Act), which regulates how personal information is handled.¹⁴

The Registrar must comply with the Australian Privacy Principles provided for in the Privacy Act, as the ABR contains records that include the personal information of individuals.¹⁵

Where the Registrar makes a disclosure of personal information under the secrecy provisions, the disclosure will be a lawful disclosure for the purposes of the Privacy Act.

⁹ A Terms and Conditions agreement sets out the rules that are to be abided by between the Registrar and the agency head or accountable authority for access to ABR information.

¹⁰ Subparagraph 30(3)(c)(iii).

¹¹ Subparagraph 30(3)(c)(iv).

¹² Subsection 30(4).

¹³ Subsection 30(5).

¹⁴ Personal information is defined in section 6 of the Privacy Act to mean information or an opinion about an identified individual, or an individual who is reasonably identifiable:
(a) whether the information or opinion is true or not, and
(b) whether the information or opinion is recorded in a material form or not.

¹⁵ Australian Privacy Principle 6 outlines the circumstances when an APP entity can use or disclose personal information that it holds.

10. Can the Registrar disclose information that is not protected information under the ABN Act

The Registrar is able to disclose, to any third party, information that has been collected or derived that is not subject to the secrecy provisions in the ABN Act. This information includes public ABR information, public whole-of-government information and aggregated ABR information.

11. Can other parties on-disclose protected information

Government agencies

The heads of government agencies that receive protected information from the Registrar become the entrusted person. As such, the entrusted person is bound by the secrecy provisions in the ABN Act. An entrusted person, who is not the Registrar, may on-disclose that information in the course of their official employment.

Government agencies that receive information about an entity from the Registrar that is not protected information and is publicly available may on-disclose that information.¹⁶

Contractors of government agencies

Government agencies may on-disclose protected information about an entity to any contractors they engage in the course of their official employment.

Other third parties

Third parties may on-disclose information that the Registrar has made publicly available about an entity.

12. Can an entity choose not to have their details publicly available

A person can apply to the Registrar requesting a detail relating to an entity registered in the ABR not to be disclosed publicly.¹⁷ The Registrar will consider the application for the non-disclosure of the details in the following circumstances:

- where an individual's personal safety is at risk
- where content is a risk to community confidence
- where the details in the ABR are not consistent with the objects of the ABN Act.

¹⁶ The government agency does not contravene section 30 by recording or disclosing information which has been made accessible to the public in accordance with subsection 26(5).

Where the Registrar does not disclose the details publicly, the details are also not disclosed to other government agencies.

Personal safety

The Registrar will be satisfied that it is not appropriate to publicly disclose a detail where the entity or their individual associates are at genuine risk of physical and mental harm, or harassment, and the disclosure of their details may:

- cause or contribute to personal harm
- have a detrimental effect on these individuals who, by virtue of their profile in the community, generate a high level of interest in their personal affairs.

This includes those persons who:

- are, or have been, affected by domestic violence
- have an assumed identity and are registered as a participant in the National Witness Protection Program
- are professionals (such as psychiatrists, the judiciary and senior public servants) who deal with dangerous individuals or groups
- high-profile public individuals.

Community standards

The Registrar will be satisfied that it is not appropriate to publicly disclose a detail where there is a risk to community confidence because certain details listed in the ABR may affect the promotion of ATO values in activities relating, but not limited, to:

- fair administration
- adherence to service standards
- community values.

This may include words that are defamatory as they contain:

- profanities
- discriminatory connotations
- obscene connotations.

Administrative remedy

The Registrar will be satisfied that it is not appropriate to publicly disclose a detail where that detail may

¹⁷ The individual who may apply to the Registrar may be an individual associated with the entity or a third party.

compromise other legislation or legitimise a name the entity is not entitled to use.

This may include circumstances where:

- a name used by the entity infringes copyright, a patent, a trademark, other intellectual property or a registered business name, or.
- a registration should not have taken place as the entity has been registered with an incorrect entity type.

Review rights

An entity can lodge an objection against a decision refusing an application not to disclose details about an entity registered in the ABR.¹⁸
