

TD 96/21 - Income tax: capital gains: if after 19 September 1985 a taxpayer makes a capital improvement to a pre-CGT principal residence, and the improvement is deemed to be a separate asset under subsection 160P(6) of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936 , is a disposal of that asset subject to the exemption for a principal place of residence?

 This cover sheet is provided for information only. It does not form part of TD 96/21 - Income tax: capital gains: if after 19 September 1985 a taxpayer makes a capital improvement to a pre-CGT principal residence, and the improvement is deemed to be a separate asset under subsection 160P(6) of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936 , is a disposal of that asset subject to the exemption for a principal place of residence?

 This ruling contains references to repealed provisions, some of which may have been rewritten. The ruling still has effect. Paragraph 32 in TR 2006/10 provides further guidance on the status and binding effect of public rulings where the law has been repealed or repealed and rewritten. The legislative references at the end of the ruling indicate the repealed provisions and, where applicable, the rewritten provisions.

 This document has changed over time. This is a consolidated version of the ruling which was published on 29 November 2006

This Determination, to the extent that it is capable of being a 'public ruling' in terms of Part IVAAA of the Taxation Administration Act 1953, is a public ruling for the purposes of that Part. Taxation Ruling TR 92/1 explains when a Determination is a public ruling and how it is binding on the Commissioner. Unless otherwise stated, this Determination applies to years commencing both before and after its date of issue. However, this Determination does not apply to taxpayers to the extent that it conflicts with the terms of a settlement of a dispute agreed to before the date of issue of the Determination (see paragraphs 21 and 22 of Taxation Ruling TR 92/20).

Taxation Determination

Income tax: capital gains: if after 19 September 1985 a taxpayer makes a capital improvement to a pre-CGT principal residence, and the improvement is deemed to be a separate asset under subsection 160P(6) of the Income Tax Assessment Act 1936, is a disposal of that asset subject to the exemption for a principal place of residence?

1. Yes. A deemed separate asset under subsection 160P(6) can qualify for the principal residence exemption under section 160ZZQ.
2. Under subsection 160ZZQ(12) a disposal of a dwelling that was, throughout the taxpayer's period of ownership, the sole or principal residence of that taxpayer does not give rise to a capital gain or loss.
3. By subsection 160ZZQ(1) a 'dwelling' includes a unit of residential accommodation constituted by, or contained in a building.
4. Paragraph 160ZZQ(3)(a) extends the meaning of 'dwelling' to include adjacent land up to 2 hectares used primarily for private or domestic purposes in association with the dwelling. In the context of subsection 160ZZQ(3), 'land' has its common law meaning and includes any structure attached to land so as to become a fixture on the land.
5. Accordingly, while an improvement to a residence can be a separate asset for the purposes of subsection 160P(6), it can still be part of a 'dwelling'. The dwelling may actually include the improvement (e.g., an extension to a house) or the dwelling may be deemed by subsection 160ZZQ(3) to include the improvement. A disposal of that separate asset as part of the dwelling may then be subject to the 160ZZQ exemption on disposal.

Example 1

In 1984 Jack buys a home. In 1987 he extends the home by adding 2 rooms. This results in a capital improvement to the home that will be deemed to be a separate asset under subsection 160P(6) on disposal. Because the improvement is part of the 'dwelling' as defined in subsection 160ZZQ(1), subsection 160ZZQ(12) exempts any capital gain attributable to the capital improvement.

Example 2

In 1982 Mary buys a home on 0.5 hectares of land. She has an outdoor swimming pool built and associated landscaping done in 1995 for private use. Together these enhancements are an improvement and qualify as a separate asset under subsection 160P(6). Though a separate asset for section 160P purposes the enhancements form part of a single dwelling for the purposes of section 160ZZQ. Subsection 160ZZQ(3) deems Mary's home to include the pool and landscaping because they are on adjacent land, the property is less than 2 hectares, and the improvements are used privately in association with the dwelling. Subsection 160ZZQ(12) exempts any capital gain attributable to the capital improvement.
